Decision

communities affected should be suitably adjusted.

Since the responsibility for "directing the permissible economic reconstruction of the combined economic area" has been delegated to the Economic Council, the Council is bound to draw a practical conclusion from the new economic situation created by the dismantling order.

The Economic Council, therefore, instructs the director of the Department of Economics to prepare for legislation with the following aims:

(1) An adjustment, through available means of production, in order to mitigate the consequences of the dismantling measures.

(2) The elimination of profits resulting from dismantling.

(3) Safeguard for the rational exploitation of plants and sources of energy.

These economic ordnances will have to be supplemented by measures in the field of social and labor policy to help the workers and communities most severely affected by the dismantling program. In particular the rights of employees and their social institutions must be protected.
