Boy Scouts at Camp Chicagami

Outdoor Life and Sunshine Build Sturdy, Independent Lads

Several years ago the Valley Council of Boy Scouts purchased a small tract of land on the north shore of Lake Winnebago, just east of the new North Shore Country Club, and fixed it up for use as a camp and recreation grounds by the Scouts and alf clubs of the county. Since school was dismissed for the summer, groups of forty or more boys have been at the camp almost daily under the leadership of M. G. Clark, Scout executive. The boys sleep in tents which are pitched on high, sunny ground. But as they do not spend much time in the tents during the daytime, the lack of shade is not felt. Its absence is more than made up for by the ease with which the tents can be aired each day, dried out in case of heavy rain, and last, but no means least, by the almost total absence of mosquitoes.

A certain amount of routine is necessary in the maintenance of the camp and the boys have regular tasks to perform each day; after which they are at liberty to entertain themselves as they choose. Hikes through the neighboring country have made them familiar with every cow path in the district, but one of the most popular of the preventions found in the water. Water sports are carefully supervised and each boy entering the water is required to place his particulars on a designated hook near the beach and to remove it when he leaves the water. In this way the leaders can tell at a glance how many boys are in the water and thus is comparatively easy to supervise them.

Other activities, including the use of carpenters' tools, the weaving of baskets and water bottles and other arts of craftsmanship are continually practiced in their idle moments and some of the boys have achieved noteworthy skill in their favorite lines. The most popular sport is indulged in three times daily, and by the end of the season the comforts of the mess hall. Nobody is ever late and the quantities packed away by these growing youths would soon put the average keeper of a boarding house out of business. But although the food is good and the meals well balanced, everything has been so systematized that the cost per boy per meal is astonishingly low.

Persons accustomed to dealing with the average boy of twelve to sixteen years would naturally assume that very rigid rules of conduct would be laid down to govern the camp. But this is not at all the case. There are practically no rules at all. The boys are on their Scout honor to practice courtesy and common sense towards each other and as a result the greatest harmony prevails. Punishments are unknown and it has never been necesary to resort to disciplinary measures of any kind.

The camp has proven a wonderful help in developing initiative and self-reliance. Recently the council acquired a tract of land on Florence lake, located south of Elton, near the northern boundary of the Menominee Indian reservation. This is called North Woods camp and some forty first-class scouts will trek up there next month to practice scouting under real wilderness conditions. They expect to be there about three weeks, from August 4 to 25 and will be pleased to welcome their parents and friends who care to make the drive to see how the boys get along.

Council Bars Left Turns at Oneida Street Corner

At the last meeting of the common council the question of repealing the ordinance prohibiting left turns at the corner of Oneida street and College avenue was discussed. By a vote of 6 to 5 it was decided not to rescind the ordinance. Aldermen R. F. Mc Gillan, C. J. Wassenberg, W. H. VanderHedden, George T. Richard and Richard Grotz are on the Mayor's side and Aldermen Oren Earle, Walter Gmeiner, George Packard, C. D. Thompson, H. G. Kittner, and Phillip Voigt objected to the change.

A petition signed by property holders been stated during the campaign last spring. Instead of having $1,000,000 in the treasury on April 1, there was a deficit. More than $1,000,000 had been borrowed and the city must pay 9% interest on the loans, which item will pay for a lot of pavement. Mayor Goodland also stated that the street department had been operated in a very careless and inefficient manner, with regard to economy, in spite of the fact that it controls the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars. The paved streets are being fixed up this year, it will cost more money than will have been the case if the proper bills of all that was done for Salt Lake City was by the city attorney, the mayor stated that the act of the Wisconsin Telephone company and the Wisconsin Michigan Power company in undertaking repairs and improvements at this time, had done nothing to alleviate the situation by furnishing work for large numbers of men.

Storm Causes Damage

The entire middle west suffered under an excessive heat wave which reached its climax last Sunday when temperatures of 109 in the shade to 30 in the sun were reported. One spire near the city reported that the sun melted out of the comb. People who sought relief from the heat by undertaking auto trips found that they had miscellaneous accidents. As they were too hot to be driven, one was snatched from the water in the cooling waves.

Towards evening a storm blew up and a heavy rain cooled off the air materially. The wind did considerable damage to trees and lodged the grain in numerous fields, thus more than offsetting the benefits brought by the much-needed rain. A barn on the farm of Anton Bohman, located three miles south of the city, was destroyed by the wind and some of the timbers thrown off the house and through the porch of the house. A small section of the family was slightly injured by falling debris when this occurred. The storm did the greatest damage in the territory between Stephenville and Shiloh and townships Waupaca, where several barns were destroyed, trees uprooted and the trains mission lines of both the Wisconsin Michigan Power company and of the Wisconsin Telephone company torn down. Monday was much more able and another shower in the event of further to lower the temperature.

Bobby Jones taught an antigambling lesson to Lloyds, the great insurance company. At the beginning of this golf season, Lloyds, which takes all kinds of wagers, bet 50 to 1 that Bobby Jones would not win the four great golf championships in succession. Now he has won three of them, and those that bet against him, seeking to insure themselves against loss, request Lloyds to bet that Jones will not win his fourth match.

Lloyds says: “No. It will cost you one thousand pounds to get a thousand pounds of insurance against Jones, victory,” which means that the victory is considered certain.

Racketeers, gunmen and other experts, driven out of Chicago by police energy, are alleged to be gathering in the bigger, richer city. Robberies of various kinds, from banks to delicatessens stores, a bomb explosion in the Fifth avenue district, business and trade union racketeers of all kinds testify to the energy with which the alleged Chicago invaders do their work.

Police say their difficulties are increased by the unwillingness of citizens to tell what they know. Business men submit to racketeering to avoid bombing.

FINE FOR THE BOYS

A visit to Chieagami, the boy scout camp on the shores of Lake Winnebago, or to any meeting or other event arranged by the scouts is sure to impress one with the excellent training given the boys by scout work. No sordid, ill-natured quarreling and bickerings because every boy knows and respects the rights of his fellows. This very fact makes discipline unnecessary; each scout is his own disciplinarian.

The 4-H clubs are working along the same lines for the boys and girls in the rural districts. The members of both organizations make better citizens as a result of the training they receive and of the association with their fellows.

But the girls of the city have been rather neglected. True, we have the local girl scouts and the campfire girls, which work is carried on under the direction of the Appleton Woman’s Club, and by a few self-sacrificing persons who know and appreciate the benefits it brings to our future mothers. But they have been sadly hampered by lack of support, both moral and financial. Many who gladly subscribe to the boy scout movements turn a deaf ear to appeals for the girl scouts. This state of affairs is much to be regretted, because our girls are just as important to the community as are the boys.

Our local service clubs have done much for various civic undertakings and were active in starting and keeping the boy scout movement going. Why should it not be a splendid opportunity for them to do the same for our girls?

At its last meeting the city council refused to rescind the ordinance prohibiting left turns at the intersection of College Avenue and Oneida street. We must confess that we do not understand the aldermanic attitude on this question unless it be that opponents of the traffic lights brought pressure to bear.

The council passes the ordinances for the regulation of traffic, but the enforcing of these measures lies in the hands of the police department and Chief Prim has certainly demonstrated many times that he ‘knows his onions.’ When he requested the installation of a series of traffic lights on the avenue, it was after having given the matter careful and painstaking study. That request was granted by the council and the lights have been installed. Opponents of the lights began finding fault even before they were put in operation.

When the first set of lights was installed at the Oneida street corner the street cars were still being operated and the resulting traffic congestion was often serious. To help eliminate this condition an ordinance prohibiting left turns was passed and the benefits were immediately noticeable. Since then the street car service has been discontinued and the tracks removed, so that the original reason for prohibiting left turns at this corner no longer exists. In fact, this prohibition does more to cause confusion than to abate it and traffic would undoubtedly be speeded up if uniform regulations were adopted for all intersections along the avenue.

In drawing up traffic regulations the advice of Chief Prim should be followed. He has made a study of the question and it is his job to direct that regulation. He is fully qualified to suggest such changes as may become necessary from time to time and the council should follow his advice in the matter instead of listening to advice from incompetent sources, which assume no responsibility if the advice turns out to be bad.

REDEEM BONDS, CUT TAXES

The announcement by Mayor McCarthy last week that approximately $64,000 in bonds, all that is outstanding against the city of Washington, Indiana, is soon to be paid, should furnish considerable food for thought to this and every other municipality. As a result the municipal tax rate of the fortunate little city probably will be reduced from $1.12 to 56 cents on each $100 of property.

In the first place it calls attention to the often overlooked fact that a considerable portion of revenue may go for interest on debts owed by a community, even unto the second and third generation.

With state and local governments borrowing about $4,000,000 a day, it is little wonder that it takes about two-thirds of the money borrowed to pay off old debts and interest on the new, which would seem to prove that paying for public improvements by bonds is much more expensive than by taxes and current revenue. For example: if a county wishes to spend $100,000 annually for 25 years for road building, it decides to pay for the work by the issue of 25 year 4 per cent straight serial bonds. During the 25 years the county will receive $82,500,000, but by the time the last bond is paid, the county will have spent $83,800,000 for the $82,500,000. In other words, every dollar spent on the road program will cost the taxpayers $1.52.

In the case of Washington, however, the carrying charges on the small indebtedness would hardly account for cutting the tax rate in two. That takes good civic management in several directions and plenty of foresight.

This is not to say that we should always pay-as-we-go in public improvements. Where the benefits extend over a considerable period it is fair and just to divide the burden. But hoped for tax reduction can never be brought about by piling up bond issues until they reach a point where a big part of revenue goes for interest.

WAR ON WEEDS

Now when weed seeds are ripening and blowing about by the wind we should be especially energetic in our war on them not only in our gardens, but everywhere on our premises—vacant lots, roadsides, yes, even the city’s boulevards are guilty of harboring these noxious pests.

There is more truth than poetry in the verification of Bob Adams in his “Hoe Handled Homilies,” when he says:

“Seeds that pusley parents sprinkle
Sleep a while like Rip Van Winkle.
Nineteen forty seven or eight,
They will likely germinate.”

At the Michigan experiment station it was found that the seeds of purslane (“pusley”) would germinate after being buried thirty years. Charlock or wild mustard was found to do the same.

Of course, weeds are most easily killed in the seeding stage, but if any escape and reach maturity they should be destroyed before they make seed. Old weeds should be burned as immature seed often ripens even after the parent plant is pulled.

There is an advantage in cultivating the garden in the fall. Some of the weed seeds will germinate and be destroyed by freezing during the winter.

WOMAN OF 78 LOVELIEST MOTHER

Has the sixteen year old beauty contest fopper lost her place in the sun?

Is it not significant of several things that Martha Curran Gray, 78, Minneapolis, was recently chosen as the loveliest mother in the United States and Canada, victor in the 20,000 contest of the Photographers’ Association of America.

A little boy, John R. Le Huquot, Victoria B. C., was the first prize winner in this international contest, as the most attractive child. Another boy, Homer A. Hinkley, of Glen Ellyn, won third place.

The special evangelistic meetings which have been in progress for the past week are attracting large crowds at each service. These Gospel services are non-sectarian, and people from all churches are cordially invited. Turner of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Turner alternate in their preaching, and at each service they render a special duet, singing a good Gospel message in song. There will be services each night at 7:30. Sunday at 2:30 P.M., Rev. Mrs. Turner will preach on the great theme, “The Spiritual Filled Life.” On Sunday evening, at 7:30, Rev. Turner will use as a subject, “Jesus, the Divine Specialist.”

The Rev. Lyle Douglas Utter, rector of All Saints Episcopal church, will deliver a sermon on “Dreams” at the Sunday service at the church. The dream has been a subject of conspicuity and considerable importance through the centuries. Years ago, dreams, events of importance, and family life generally were regulated by dreams and their interpretations. The dream has given rise to religious groups and no doubt has had a great deal to do with modern spiritualism as believed in by the great Englishman, Sir Conan Doyle. The dream has its place of importance in the Old Testament. In the book of Joel is found the unusual statement. “Your old men shall dream dreams and your young men shall see visions. The questions ‘Has this prophecy been fulfilled?’ ‘Has it any real significance for the people of this age? ’ and ‘What is its bearing on the moral and religious world?’ will be answered as fair and correct as possible in the sermon on Dreams to be delivered by Dr. Utter Sunday. Special organ music will be furnished by John Ramey, Fond du Lac.

Reformed and Evangelical churches of the Fox River valley will hold the second annual picnic at Riverside park, Neenah, Sunday. First Reformed St. John Evangelical churches of Appleton will participate. Members of the parishes take their own band dinners and a lawn covering of sun-kissed grass, then are not too soft tables at the park to accommodate all those who are expected to attend. Refreshments will be served at the park.

Short Trips of Interest

Door County Cherryland

Now that cherry picking is in full swing in Door county many of our readers will be planning to take that trip, perhaps to visit a son or daughter who is earning a little money during vacation at one of the several camps and it is well worth the effort, though it cannot be classed with the short trips, because to really see the cherry country, one must drive close to 200 miles. And to see the most beautiful part of the peninsula, one must drive 50 miles or more. Because of its beauty it is popular. The roads are excellent, but the traffic is heavy, especially on Sundays and holidays, so that it is advisable to take the trip on a week day, if at all possible.

Leaving Appleton drive to Green Bay and there take highway 78. For many miles this splendid highway runs along the top of a cliff, a hundred feet or more above the bay shore, so that you have a wonderful view of farmlands and of the bay. If the weather is exceptionally clear, you may even be able to see the western shore and the smoke from the factories at Marinette and Menominee.

Sawyer is the first city of any size reached. It lies on the western side of Sturgeon Bay and is connected with the city of the same name by an old wooden toll bridge, one of the few toll bridges still remaining in this part of the country. The fare is 10 cents for each auto and drivers are supposed to have it ready for the tollkeeper, so as not to delay traffic. This bridge is now being replaced by a modern steel structure being erected a few rods to the south. It will not be opened to traffic until next year.

A few miles this side of Sawyer you will begin to see the cherry orchards, but the larger ones are on the other side of Sturgeon Bay, so keep on through that city on 78. The county is quite hilly, but as far as the eye can reach are rows upon rows of cherry trees, now loaded down with the sumptuous red or black fruit. If you stop you can turn back here and have a trip of about 150 miles. But if you do, you will be missing the best part of the trip — Peninsula State Park between Fish Creek and Ephraim, the latter about 25 miles beyond Sturgeon Bay. A drive through the park and a visit to the state game farm will more than repay you for the extra mileage. The view from Panorama Point will tempt you to linger, and if you are feeling energetic you will want to climb the tower on Eagle Bluff, which rises above the highest trees and affords a marvellous view of the entire peninsula as well as of the bay and of Lake Michigan.

Continue on through Ephraim, Sister Bay and Garrett, the latter pretty close to the “jumping off” place as orchard. Apple orchards are not yet numerous, so that local help is able to do the apple picking.

When the cherries are picked, they are immediately placed in large vats of cold water, and after being thoroughly cooled are rushed by truck to the cooperative store at Sturgeon Bay, where they are frozen by being subjected to a temperature of 30 below zero before being run through the pitting machines which remove the stones or pits. If this process is completed while the cherries are frozen, they retain their shape, which is not the case if the pits are removed when the cherries are soft. The frozen cherries may also be kept in storage for a considerable period of time, thus avoiding the necessity of dumping the entire crop on the market within a few weeks, with the resultant low prices and losses for the orchardists. It is very interesting to watch the long line of trucks awaiting their turn to deliver their cherries at the cannery; everyone who is there, from the family flivver with a few cases from the small orchard, up to the big three and five ton trucks, bringing hundreds and hundreds of cases from the larger orchards.

Take the trip on a week day when the activity is at its greatest. You will feel well rewarded.

AN OLD STYLE BASEBALL GAME

The terrific heat last Sunday was largely responsible for a real old style baseball game, staged by the Brantford Ford’s and Kimberly-Little Chute at Brantford Park Sunday. The locals acquired a 12 to 2 lead in the early frames, but after “Lefty” Ritter was taken out in the fifth, the boys from down river rapidly overhauled them and the final score was 19 to 17 in favor of Kimberly-Little Chute. No less than 8 home runs were made, of which “Sonny” Tornow acquired three, being responsible for six of the runs compiled by his team.

SERVICE TO MOTORISTS

Motorists will be glad to learn that Mr. Lautenschlager, proprietor of the Auto Body Service at 809 W. College Avenue, has added a new towing service truck to his equipment. It is a heavy duty truck weighing 4000 pounds and is equipped with hoist and everything necessary to render complete service on the road. A call to Appleton 305 will bring this truck to your immediate assistance at any time of the day or night.

A Suggestion Worth More Than a Passing Thought

Editor Review: Being an occasional visitor to Shawano County park, Neenah and Menasha municipal beaches and Menominee park at Oshkosh, the woeful lack of anything of a like nature at Appleton has become more apparent with each visit. I know that there is scarcely an opportunity for anything of a like nature along the river in or near our city. But isn’t there a possibility of the city of Appleton, through some of its agencies, the park board, for instance, acquiring a few hundred feet of frontage on the north shore of Lake Winnebago, and with the expenditure of a few thousands of dollars make as attractive a and utilitarian a beach as any of those named, and furthermore, have it practically at our front door?

More About Arterial Stops

Editor Review: I read an article in your paper of July 18 in which “Traveling Man” wants arterial signs placed further from intersections. Wouldn’t that be nice, to provide a perfect auxiliary for those blind drivers, who don’t want to see a stop sign unless there is an officer beside it?

Like the fellow who, when I stopped for the arterial at the junction of 10 and 41 at the south end of Memorial drive at 8:15 P.M., Saturday, July 19, slid by me without stopping. He wasn’t going so fast he couldn’t stop, about 12 to 15 miles per hour, nor did he seem to be in an awful hurry. I followed to College avenue and he got away from that stop slower than I usually do. I believe he, like many other drivers, was just too plain lazy to use his brake and shift gears unless it is likely to cost him money not to do so.

If fast drivers must have a warning of “arterial ahead!” in order to stop, give it to them at places where traffic warrants it, such as Laphon’s Corners, but keep the “Stop” sign where the stop should be made.

—C. E. Schroeder

(Editors note: As we understood Traveling Man’s letter, he referred to arterial stop signs on county highways, not those on city streets.)

Keep After Arterial Jumpers

Editor Review: I was very glad to note that the local police have started a drive on arterial jumpers and I know that the great majority of drivers will agree with me in hoping that it is kept up. Just the other day I saw four “jumpers” within a few minutes. Two of them were going at least 30 miles per hour and both crossed blind intersections at that speed without slowing up in the slightest degree.

An Invitation

Editor Review: As I read in the July 18 issue of the Review of the evidence of railroad companies’ finding that Ed Sieg’s wageworms really weren’t as educated as was supposed, I’m wondering if he would like to join us in an exciting “snipe hunt.”

We leave the corner of College avenue and Oneida streets at 4 A.M. next Thursday. (And I wouldn’t in the least be surprised at seeing him there.)

—Amused.

(Editors Note: “Another Fisherman!” informs us that he will be glad to go on a snipe hunt with “Amused” but as this is the closed season he wants to wait until September. He says he has been snipe hunting before, but they started at midnight and he lost the rest of the party in the woods both times and consequently had no luck. He thinks that if Amused will start at 4 A.M. it will be light enough so that he won’t get lost and will be able to learn what it is all about.)

About “Wallboard” Roads

Editor Review: In your editorial last week you laid great stress on the smoothness of the roads in Upper Michigan as compared with the wallboard effect on most of our highways. The reason for the difference is not hard to find and lies in the much greater traffic on our roads. No dirt or gravel roads can be kept smooth under the traffic our roads are called upon to carry these days.

—M. W.

(Editor’s Note: Our correspondent has missed the point we sought to make. The main highways in Upper Michigan carry a heavy traffic and lack the wallboard effect. Of course that would be impossible on roads like highway 47 between Black Creek and Bonduel, but it could easily be attained on our numerous county trunk highways.

The traffic on these roads is comparatively light and is by no means as heavy as the traffic on the main highways in Upper Michigan to which reference was made. Even roads like those could be kept in much better condition if more real engineering knowledge were available. Under present conditions the work is done by men who are not hired by the day and likely to be fired for any mistake made.)

JOHNSON’S SHOE REBUILDERS

An essential service of which every economically inclined person should take advantage is offered the public by Johnson’s Shoe Rebuilders, located at 133 E. College avenue. Many people think that a shoe has been repaired when they can wear it again. But real repairing is no longer sufficient, a much additional life and wear can be built into the shoe, if the work is honestly and scientifically done.

Johnson’s shop is equipped with the newest machinery and only the best materials are used. The work is done by skilled workmen under the supervision of Mr. Johnson, who has made an intensive study of shoe repairing, so that all work turned out is guaranteed to be the best possible. Prices are reasonable and many people have been pleasantly surprised at having many additional weeks of wear built into shoes which they had thought worthless.

INSTALLMENT IV

There was a nervous anxiety in her face, and a mute interrogation in her gray eyes.

"Is he afraid he's a little sick today?"

"He's got a cold, but come in, won't you, and see him?"

"Thank you." With some words of Winsiun, the old man managed to show his affection, and she smiled gratefully to her.

"Maybe he would care for some cof ce," I said. "I think I could rustle some in some.

She gave me a queer, sad look of thanks.

"If you could," she said. When I returned she had the old man up and about, and it was no time to stop off from me, and she held the cup to his lips; but after a few sips he turned away. "I'm afraid he doesn't care for that," I said.

"No, I'm afraid he won't take it, Mr. Berta... I only had some fruit!

Then it was I thought of the strange old woman who had been with her before leaving, thinking we were a grateful surprise to our unexpected visit. And now, as I looked at the old man, I wondered if we were here to see the old woman. It seemed as if we had been told some sad news, for he ate eagerly. When he had finished and was resting quietly, she turned to me:

"I don't know how I can thank you, Mr. Berta, for your kindness."

"Very easily," I said quickly. "If you will yourself accept some of the fruit, I shall be more than repaid."

She gave me a dubious look; then took a handful of fruit and ate it, her eyes shining with pleasure.

"And now, what do you want? We've all got to eat."

"Yes, there's nothing you can do. You've been kindness itself to grandmothers, and I never can thank you enough."

"Nonsense! Don't talk of thanks, Mr. Berta. I know what you want, but I've had to get a little of this:

She did not speak at once. Indeed, she was quiet for a long time, so that it seemed as if she must be thinking of some feeling that she was suffering. That is a very great, very quietly, very sweetly, as if she were eating it.

"No, there's nothing you can do. You've been kindness itself to grandmothers, and I never can thank you enough."

"Nonsense! Don't talk of thanks, Mr. Berta. I know what you want, but I've had to get a little of this:

She did not speak at once. Indeed, she was quiet for a long time, so that it seemed as if she must be thinking of some feeling that she was suffering. That is a very great, very quietly, very sweetly, as if she were eating it.

"Yes, I know. Well, then, you are my dear, true friend—there now."

"Yes—but, Berta, tomorrow you'll go and we'll likely never see each other again. What's the good of it all?"

"It's worth it, even if we both have a memory, a very sweet, nice memory, won't we? Believe me, it's better so. You don't want to have anything to do with a girl like me. You don't know anything about me, and who are the kind of people I'm living with. Perhaps I am just as bad as they."

"Don't say that, Berta," I interjected. "You'd be a strange kind of person if you didn't know where we are going, and I'm afraid, afraid."

"Well, Berta, if it's like that, why don't you go and your grandfather turn back? Why go on?"

"He'll never turn back. He'll go on till he dies, He only knows when one day he'll stop and decide to stop, and Klondike. He musters it a thousand times a day. He's like a man that's crazy. He thinks he has been chosen, and that to him will be a great treasure he revealed. You might as well reason on the stone as to follow him, is to take care of him."

"What about the Winkelstons, Berta?"

"Oh, we're at the bottom of it all. It is they who have inflamed his mind. He's like a little boy, the spring of a lifetime, with two thousand dollars; and ever since he came to this country he's been talking about it. They're so blind and kill him and the cruel part is—he's not greedy, he doesn't want it for himself—no, That's what breaks my heart."

"Surely you're mistaken, Berta; they can't be so bad as that."

"All right. These are my last words to you:"

"In New York, I came from the old country to them. They worked for me in a restaurant at first. Then I became a bit, I got employment in a shirt-waist factory. I was quick and handy, and I worked early and late, and attended a night school. I read till my eyes ache'd. They said I was clever. The teacher wanted me to be the teacher, too. But what was the good of thinking of it? I had my living there, and so I stayed. I learned the business and worked and worked. Then when I saved a few dollars, I sent for a nurse and she came and we lived in the tenement and were very happy for a while. But the Winkelstons never were any more. They knew they had him and a little money laid away, and they itched to get their hands on it. I wasn't afraid in New York, but it's different. It's all so shadowy and sinister.

"I didn't mean to tell you all this, but now, if you want to be a true friend, just go away and forget me. You don't want to have anything to do with me. Wait! I'll tell you something more. I'm called Berna Wilcox. That's my grandfather's name. My mother ran away from home. Two years later she came back—with me. She was my nurse, and she died in consequence. She would never tell me my father's name, but said he was a Christian, and of good family. My grandfather took me out. He would have killed the man. So, you see, I am nameless, a child of shame and sorrow. And you are a gentleman, and protect me and my family. Now see, the kind of friend I've made. You don't want to make friends with such as I, they've said."

"I want to make friends with such as need my friendship. What is going to happen to you, Berta?"

"Haven't God knows! It doesn't matter. Oh, I've always been in trouble. I'm used to it. It's what I was made for, I suppose.

What she had told me had somehow stricken me dumb. There seemed a stark sadness in the situation that repelled me. She had arisen when I awoke myself.

"Berta," I said, "what you have told me wrings my heart. I can't tell you how terribly sorry I feel. Oh, I hate to let you go like this."

Her voice was full of pathetic regret.

"What can you do? If we were going in together it might be different. When I met you at first I hoped, oh, I hoped—if I had but known what I hoped. But believe me, I'll be all right. You won't forget me, will you?"

"Forget you! No, Berta, I'll never forget you. It cuts me to the heart—I can do nothing now, but we'll meet up there. We can't be divided for long. And you'll be all right, believe me."

"I'll die and you, too, little girl. Be good and sweet and true and every one will love and help you. Ah, you must go. Well, God bless you, Berta."

"And I wish you happiness and success, dear friend of mine."

Kitchen Helps

Frozen Fruit Juices for Summer Desserts

With the progress of artificial refrigeration in the home, frozen desserts are easier and easier to prepare. Even for users of natural ice they are not at all difficult.

There are good, inexpensive freezer on the market with capacities from a pint up. Any dessert that does not need stirring during the freezing process can be easily and successfully prepared in the freezer, by packing in one of the food containers that fit the compartments, the same as you would pack in the refrigerator.

Fruit ices are the simplest; wholesome, refreshing and economical. They are made by simply freezing a mixture of fruit juices, water and sugar, or syrup for sweetening. Peaches, cherries, berries, plums and other fresh fruits in season as well as canned fruits and juices or even cooked dried fruits may be used.

Ices should be frozen with the proportion of eight parts of ice to one of salt. Unlike ice cream, they are best if they are not allowed to stand packed long after freezing. Freeze until stiff and serve.

For a nice smooth consistency in ices, white corn syrup may be added. Add the syrup to the sugar and water, cook all together; add the fruit juices and thoroughly blend and cool. Never put the mixture in the freezer while warm. Pre-cooling cuts down the actual freezing period and gives a better product. Raspberry ice is especially refreshing for a hot weather dessert. To make about two quarts of ice, press two quarts of raspberries through a coarse sieve, boil ¾ cup of sugar and 2 cups water together until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved, and cool. Add the raspberry juice and 3 tbsp. of lemon juice. Pour into a freezer and freeze, using eight parts of ice to one of salt.

Banana ice has an especially smooth texture. Cook one cup of sugar, ½ cup of corn syrup and one cup of water until the mixture makes a thick thread. Remove from the fire, add a cup of water, a cup of orange juice, 2 tbsp. of lemon juice and 2 bananas, which have been pressed through a coarse sieve. Cool and freeze. One cup of heavy cream added just before freezing makes a delicious variation.

If a more nourishing dessert is wanted, use instead of the plain ice, a Raspberry Mousse.

Press raspberries (either fresh or canned) through a fine sieve—enough to make a mixture of 1 cup and 2 or 3 tbsp. pulp and 6 tbsp. juice additional. Let this mixture of pulp and juice stand in refrigerator about ½ hour. Heat ½ cup evaporated milk in top of double boiler to scalding point. Cool, then chill in bowl surrounded by chipped ice and salt. Whip until stiff. Fold in carefully 2 tbsp. lemon juice and raspberry mixture. Turn into cold freezing tray and place in refrigerator immediately. Freeze about 3 hours.

Milk Gives Energy on Tiring Days

Summer menus should supply the vitamins and minerals needed to keep up the body's repair without giving excess fat—heating foods. Milk is a big essential item in summer cookery for the average family. It can be used in so many ways. Cold milk drinks lend themselves to the simple family meal, informal refreshment, or even the afternoon bridge. Chocolate Milk Shake

A very good chocolate shake can be made by adding a little into a shaker 1 pint of rich milk, or 1 cup evaporated milk and 1 cup ice water, 3 to 4 tbsp. chocolate syrup, or 3 tbsp. cocoa syrup, and some chipped ice. Shake vigorously and serve. Makes two glasses.

To make the chocolate syrup for this melt 2 squares of bitter chocolate over hot water. Add 1 cup boiling water and cook directly over low flame, stirring vigorously, until thick and smooth (about 2 minutes). Add 1 cup granulated sugar and with occasional stirring continue cooking 3 or 4 minutes. If a syrup with more body is desired, add a marshmallow or ½ tsp. gelatine softened in 1 tbsp. cold water to the hot syrup and beat until well blended. Pour into a jar and keep covered in a cool place.

Fruits, Flowers and Folks

Some fifteen years ago the great Elbert Hubbard expressed some thoughts under the above title that are well worth contemplation as we sit in our gardens this bright summer day. Aristote lived four hundred years before Christ. He was native of Macedonia, which was then a province of Greece. When a boy of seventeen, he walked to Athens, a distance of over two hundred miles, in order to attend the school of Plato. Aristote had been a mountain guide and mountain climber, so a little walk of two hundred miles was nothing to him. All of his life he was an out-of-doors man. He was a lover of animals, especially of horses. He wrote a book on the horse—a book of three thousand pages. In the book he said all there was to say on the subject, and any man who now writes on the horse quotes Aristotle, knowingly or not.

Now, Aristote trained horses to do his bidding. And he argued with Alexander, his pupil, that a horse was a product of nature, and, as a man could train horses, so could he also train men and flowers. And while man himself is a product of nature, he has the power to fashion and form nature, and with the force of nature. Thus does not man make in great degree, his own environment.

The climate of Greece is the climate of California. There are towering mountains and wide stretches of desert. The snow falls upon the snow, and, through his artistic skill, can water the land which man has neglected. Thus did Aristote and the waste places provide flowers and fruits. And then it was he said in the land that produces beautiful flowers and luxuriant fruits can also produce noble men and women.

Alfred Russel Wallace asserts that man's first civilization came through the domestication of animals. Through his responsibility of caring for animals, man gained the protection he evokes himself. Friedrich Froebel, who was a forerunner before he was a school teacher, said that the care of the flowers and trees, men evolved their spiritual nature. Years after he had said it, Froebel was surprised to find that Aristotle, twenty-three centuries before, had said the same thing.

Prayers for rain are good, but a irrigating ditch is more reliable. Princes have to be reinforced by initiates before we get the highest good, for certainly needs man to work through God's fruits and flowers can compare with those where man has brought human system, science and like to boast.

Well did Aristote say that the land that produces beautiful flowers and luxuriant fruits will also produce noble men and women. And in the products of the finest flowers and fruits man finds his own soul.

The Old Loveliness

Old books, old friends are best,
Old things are loveliest:

Old houses, and the glamour of old days,
The olden peace, the olden, quiet ways,

Old gospels, and old dreams!
With new delight life teems
When those are read, when these are told.

All youth at last grows old.
In bleak December, lo!
A whirlwind of white snow.
O heart! Just April then
Seems wonderful again.

Yet dream new dreams, be glad
For all the soul once had.
Old books, old friends are best—
Old love is loveliest.

A Prayer for a Little Home

God, send us a little home
To come back to when we roam—

Low walls and fluted tiles,
Wide windows, a view for miles;
Red fireplace and deep chairs;

Small white beds upstairs;
Great talks in little nooks;
Din colors, rows of books;

One picture on each wall;
Not many things at all.

God, send us a little ground—
Tall trees standing round,
Honeysuckle in brown soil,
Overhead, Thy stars, O God!

God, bless, when winds blow,
Our home, and all we know.

—Selected.

Friendly Neighbors

By sure you bird bath is supplied with fresh water these hot days.

How many bird baths have you? Remember the wooden chopping bowls, sold at household supply departments, are ideal for this purpose.

On the camp ground at Camp Williams there stands an old cannon. A pair of bluebirds chose this place for their nest and successfully reared their young here for many summers.

I would have loved to get a photograph of Mr. Bluebird as he stood guard as top of the cannon near its mouth, but a Madam Bluebird sat inside, coveting the eggs and little ones. It would have been a darling picture. I would have called it Peace. But long before anyone could get within snap shot distance of him, he flew away, as it was quite shy.

Still I relate the end of the story. Is any bird stories end disastrously? Whether circumstances the old man would have been an ideal nesting place for bluebirds. Colonel Charles Williams loved them and promised dire punishment to anyone who would interfere with them. They were safe from snakes, cats, crows and hawks, and from the villages as long as we had not thought of molesting them. The soldiers respected their rights, and the bluebird on the cannon was pointed out to interested visitors.

But a lady's boy, seeing the birds enter the cannon, poked a stick into the canot and destroyed the nest. The bluebirds have never returned.

As electric light wire laid into an ditch over a window; just above this a swallow built her nest. Everyone was delighted, for these are the city mud swallows anywhere about, and as they only mosquitos and fox, it was hoped others might come this way.

The building had to be painted. The man in charge loved the birds and was much concerned about them. He ordered the painters "to make it snappy round the swallow's nest," as, indeed, they did. For Mr. and Mrs. Swallow perched them continually, flying into their faces and making a great commotion.

Then the clerk, whose desk was just inside the window under the swallow's nest, began to feel an uncomfortable feeling on his hands, so aggravating that he washed them with strong soap. Then he felt the same irritation on his face and on examination in the mirror found that face and hands were full of mud! The tern punget in the paint had evidently driven them out of the nest.

It was interesting to note that when the young swallows flew from the nest, the parents flew with them, brushes their wings on the way, and very slighting as far as eye could follow them.

Note—Authorities make the assertion that our native birds were not injured, with miles till after the English war came. And it is claimed that they distributed them by using "circus" stop. I expected to see a crush, and the lady ahead of me evidently expected to be hit, because she swerved, narrowly missing the lad walking in the street. The driver of the yellow coupe, who was old enough to know better, laughed as though he thought it funny.
