APPLETON REVIEW has arranged for a splendid new fashion service for women—Authentic, Indicating and Forecasting, as well as reporting Fashion Notes.

Madame E. H. Duval, in charge of the Paris Fashion Bureau of a large association of American manufacturers, will send a weekly letter direct from Paris. June Hamilton Rhodes, prominent New York fashion editor who has been in Appleton, will tell us what is new and fashionable in our own metropolis.

All the best of this we shall print for our feminine Reviewers.

After that it is up to the shops to supply what you want.
Local Order of Elks Initiate Large Class

One of the largest classes in the history of Appleton Elksdom was initiated into that order on Wednesday night of this week. The program formally opened at 8 o'clock when the refreshment committee had an hour supper at 636, followed by the music of the band and members. During the dinner, the Elks band played a concert and was assisted by the new soloist, Miss Eileen Hansen of Seymour. Miss Hansen sang for her first number "My Hero," from the Chocolate Soldier. In this number she had ample opportunity to show off her wonderful range and power. She responded with an encore by singing "Mother." This was the number that received so heavily for her first appearance as soloist of the 120th Field Artillery band. Miss Hansen is becoming more popular with each appearance and will again be heard at Lawrence Memorial Chapel on November 25 at the regular free concert by the 120th Field Artillery Band. At 7:15 the band was seated for dinner and Gene Konselmann presented his lady's orchestra from Terrace Gordon, and had a half hour proper at 636. Needless to say the girls made a hit and it is the hope of all present that Brother Gene will again give the lodge a treat by presenting the girls at a future date. At 8 o'clock the lodge room was ready for the "My Hero," and all of the officers were in full regalia and to the music of the band the work was started.

After the candidates had been officially accepted the order's chair was turned over to Past Exalted Ruler J. P. Frank who, in behalf of the lodge, presented Major Class, A. Green with a Gold Life Membership card as a token of appreciation for the interest he has shown in the matters of the lodge. The presentation was made to the Appleton Elks lodge by Mr. Frank, in his eloquent address, pointed out the untiring efforts of Major Green as chairman of the committee for the past six years and his very active participation in the affairs of the lodge.

After the ceremonies Mr. C. E. Broughton of Sheboygan, past state president of the Wisconsin State Elks association, was presented to the lodge as district deputy. In a glowing tribute to A. Green, the speaker, and his officers he spoke of the splendid way in which the initiation was conducted. Mr. Broughton congratulated the Appleton Elks as well as the city itself on the splendid musical organization that had been formed here in Appleton and told of how he as president of the State Elks association had the privilege of announcing this organization to over a dozen of the largest radio stations on the west coast on their trip to the national Elks convention at Los Angeles. Mr. Broughton personally spent fifteen hundred dollars to make this trip possible for the Appleton band and said it was worth many times the amount in the way the band captured first prize against many large cities represented.

On Thursday, November 21, a Thanksgiving party will be held at the club house and will be open to all Elks and their friends. Edward Munn will be in charge of entertainment and a good time is assured for all who attend.

Red Cross Worker
Visits Appleton

Mr. A. T. McCue of St. Louis, first aid and life saving representative of the American Red Cross, spent Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week in our city demonstrating and instructing in his field. He gave short talks to the three local service clubs, the Rotary, the Lions, and the Kiwanis, spoke at the three junior high schools and at the senior high school, gave life saving demonstrations at the Y. M. C. A. and at Lawrence college gym, as well as giving the boys a scolding on first aid demonstration. In between, he managed to find time for a trip to Seymour, where he put in several hours giving similar talks and demonstrations.

As a result of his visit it is planned to revive the Junior Red Cross in our city as a school project at the three junior high schools, the work will be in charge of Miss Margarette Roome of Roosevelt Junior high.

Sewer Connections
for Grand Chute

Three sewers connecting property in the town of Grand Chute with the Appleton system were reconnected by the street department when records were found to show that the property owners had been given permission to hook up with the city sewer. The service had been paid for. The Grand Chute sewer problem had been discussed at several council meetings, but the connection was ordered severed when no record could be found in the official minutes of the council. However, in 1914 Adam Remley, then city engineer, granted permission for connection to two Grand Chute property owners, and a third Grand Chute resident paid $110 in April, 1922, for the privilege of connecting with the city sewer.

County Board Considers
Proposed Vigilante System

Board Members Show Lack of Enthusiasm for Subject

Appleton's Share of Outagamie County Taxes Will Be 44 Per Cent for 1931

The first problem considered by the Outagamie County Board which went into session at the court house Tuesday afternoon was the proposed vigilante system, the matter having been pending for more than a year. An invitation had been extended to the members of the county board to attend a dinner sponsored by the Outagamie County Bankers association, at which time the project of establishing a vigilante system in the county was to be informally discussed. Roll call revealed that only six or eight members would be able to attend the dinner, and the county board, as a whole, was not satisfied that this important matter should be discussed outside of the board meeting. Supervisor A. W. Laabs of the town of Grand Chute, was emphatic in his assertion that the place for discussion of county business is before the county board, and he suggested that the bankers be asked to present their proposition before a meeting of the board. Other supervisors concurred in this opinion, and action on a proposed vigilante committee was laid aside until such time as the complete discussion is presented to the board. Both approval and opposition to the proposed system were voiced. The plan proposes a county appropriation of $1500 for protective equipment.

The highway commission submitted its report on the estimated funds available for county highway work during 1931. Of the total amount of $281,647,50, $43,524.34 is for the improvement of the county trunk system; $58,998.34 as federal aid in improvement of state trunk highways, the location to be determined by the highway commissioners; $129,508 as state aid, location to be determined by the highway commissioner; $57,914.08 for maintenance of the trunk highway system. These amounts are tentative, the exact amount not being available until the end of the fiscal year, June 20, 1931.

Chairman Mike Mack of the county board was instructed to attend the meeting called by Governor Kohler for mayors, county boards, and industrial leaders at Madison today for consideration of the state's unemployment problem. This was declared, in the argument that followed presentation of the resolution authorizing the chairman to attend, to be a state problem in which the county was vitally interested.

The assessed valuation of the county for taxation purposes is $124,424,244, according to the report of the board of equalization. The assessed valuation for 1929 was $125,992,396. Of this amount the city of Appleton represents a valuation of $55,372,960, a higher figure than a year ago when the valuation was placed at $54,904,210. In other words Appleton’s share of the total county taxes will be 44.23 per cent; towns will pay $40,724,269 or 32.73 per cent; villages, $15,950,804, or 12.07 per cent and cities $48,673,172 or 53.19 per cent.

The real estate valuation of Appleton, shown by the board’s report is $41,542,100 and personal property $7,879,560. The county's total real estate valuation is $107,743,360 and personal property $81,682,884.

A resolution was passed by Supervisor A. W. Laabs, Grand Chute, memorializing the state legislature to fix the state law so that the state shall create unemployment compensation for the income tax assessors to confer with the boards of equalization before establishing final assessment figures. The members of the board present, present, have no voice in the determination of assessments, but merely place approval on the figures set by the assessor. The argument was advanced by some supervisors that they do not believe the assessment is on an equal basis everywhere, some localities being assessed at 40 per cent and others at 100 per cent. Supervisor Ryon pointed out that the basis of assessment made no difference if all districts were rated on the same basis. The county board unanimously voted (Continued on page 12)
Intercepting Sewer for Valley

Review's program for a clean city includes a proper disposal of waste of all kinds—an adequate incinerator for garbage and a safer and less destructive method of sewage disposal.

Let us clean up the "dumps" and beautify the grounds. Let us clean up the river and beautify that.

Appleton and other cities of the valley dump their sewage into the Fox river. Appleton takes its water supply from the Fox river. It has been so for many years and by dint of great watchfulness and extreme and constant care we have managed to escape the possible dire consequences. Experts guard our water supply and it is "safe," but—

We have stood up and charged the manufacturers with "polluting" our streams with waste chemicals resulting from manufacturing processes and killing the fish we had a right to be taking from the stream, but we have been strangely silent about our own guilt in the matter—dumping in the sewage of our towns year after year in an ever-increasing quantity.

The state board of health is suggesting that cities of the valley unite in creating a sanitary district, build an intercepting sewer which shall lead to a sewage disposal plant located perhaps at or near Kaukauna. This would serve the entire district and each town's share would be pro-rated according to some fair way agreed upon by all.

The sewer could be laid along the margin of the river and it has been suggested that a scenic drive might be built upon it. The plan would do away with a dangerous and noisome condition and at the same time beautify a noble stream that is a valuable asset to these communities and has been favorably compared to the historic Rhine for scenic beauty.

New National Park

After much discussion Great Smoky Mountains National park is at last an accomplished fact, title to the land donated by North Carolina and Tennessee having been accepted by the federal government. The people of the United States have another new and magnificent playground.

With the industrial life of the nation shaping itself toward more leisure for the great mass of people, the national park idea is one of the finest things our government is doing. Year after year, tourists by the thousands travel to and fro over the land to visit and refresh themselves in these stretches of unspoiled natural beauty. The more we have of them the more easily accessible will they be to everyone.

The Great Smoky region fully deserves to be included in the list with the fifteen or sixteen others set aside by the national government for the enjoyment of their beauties and benefits by the people. Because, with the exception of Acadia National park in Maine, open all the year, our national parks lie mostly west of the Mississippi, and in the "far west" at that, the Great Smoky park will be doubly welcome on account of its proximity to the great eastern centers of population which, no doubt, will contribute enormous crowds during the next few years.

The Cost of Keeping Well

A great hospital in Omaha, Wise Memorial, is making an experiment in reducing its charges for hospital service, and according to the World-Herald, Omaha is "watching with hopeful eyes" the result of this experiment, feeling that the decision to reduce rates all along the line is one of the "most helpful acts of public service" that has been made recently in that community.

The high cost of keeping well has mounted so rapidly in the last decade or so that it has become quite a problem to many. Not the rich who can readily pay for expert medical and surgical attention. A suite in a hospital, a whole staff of nurses, expert care, are a matter of course to them. Not the very poor, who, when they must ask for charity, also receive good care. These are not vitally affected by rates.

There is, however, a tremendously large number between these two extremes, without money enough to afford the best, too proud to ask for help, who have denied themselves the services of doctors and the care of hospitals, because they could not pay the bills. This group would be greatly benefited by hospital reductions and many of them would find it possible to safeguard the health of themselves and their families in a way now denied them.

It is to be devoutly hoped that the splendid experiment will succeed and become a permanent practice in Omaha and that it will be copied all over the country.

Talks were given by Mrs. Laura Baker, Beloit, grand matron, and J. B. Wagg, grand patron. Mrs. Jennie Dower, Janevile, spoke in behalf of the past grands, and Mrs. Emma Moreseyn, Chilton, spoke for the ap- politeive grands. A musical program was presented under the direction of Miss Freda Kopplin. Cards provided entertainment later in the evening, prizes being awarded to Mrs. Lee Wilcox, Janesville; Mrs. D. G. Bialkowski, Mrs. David Smith, and Mrs. George Danbreuch.

James B. Wagg, recently elected grand patron of the grand lodge, Order of Eastern Star, was host to the grand officers and their escort at 9:30 breakfast at the Conway hotel Thursday morning. There were 30 guests, all of whom were also guests at the party given by the Fidelity chapter at Masonic temple Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. Wagg.

Thirty-two tables were in play at the card party sponsored by Group 1 of St. Therese church Wednesday evening. Mrs. Clarence Tilbets and Mrs. Katharine Wegener had charge of the party. Prizes were won by George E. Morley and Mrs. H. Eggert at bridge; John Timmers, Albert J. West, Mrs. Huhn, and Gertrude Recker at schafkopf; Juliana Laux and Mrs. John Stoffel at dice; and Mrs. Henry Krans at plumpoak.

How To Play The New Backgammon
By Lelia Hattersley

LESSON II
Playing the Game

At the outset of the game of backgammon the men are set up on the various points in the positions indicated. It will be noted that the White men on any point have exactly the corresponding number of Black men placed opposite them. Each contestant sits on his own side of the board and plays from that position.

The object of the game is for a player to move his men into his inner table and then throw or bear them off from the board before his adversary can accomplish the same end, all of a player’s moving and bearing off being made in accordance with the successively captured points of his dice.

A player’s line of march is from his opponent’s inner table to his outer table, thence across his own outer table, into his own inner table, and finally (when all his own men have reached his inner table) off the board. As indicated by the arrows in Diagram I, Article I, when the men are set up with the inner tables as illustrated, the men in Black’s position move clockwise, while those in White’s move counter-clockwise. Thus the opposing men are continually meeting and passing each other.

A game is started by each contestant throwing one die. In case of a tie, the players throw again until one or the other throws a higher number. The player with the higher cast makes the first move for which he must adopt both the numbers thrown. For example, if White’s cast is a five and Black’s a two, White makes the first move, using the five and two as his numbers.

After the first play each contestant in turn throws two dice from his own cup until the portion of the board at his right and makes his moves accordingly. A player can move a man as many points as there are spots on the face of the thrown die, counting from but not including the point on which the man starts. A different man can be moved for each die, or the whole throw can be taken with one man in two distinct moves, corresponding exactly to the number of spots on each of the dice.

A move must always be made if possible. When all possible moves are blocked, the player loses his turn. If, however, he can play one but not both of his numbers, he must play the higher.

Any number of men of the same color may be placed on one point. A move may be made to any point unless that point is occupied or blocked by two or more of the enemy’s men. For example, on White’s opening play of five and two, he could not move one of his men from Black’s inner table on the five throw because the point to which this move would carry him is blocked. Nor could White take the whole throw of seven with one man, because he could use the two as the first move to a free point, the second

Suggests Jones Park for the Garbage Incinerator

Editor Review—Has the city council ever considered Jones Park as a site for the proposed garbage incinerator?

The advantages of such a location would be obvious. It is centrally located; almost as much so as the fairgrounds. Access could be had from both Appleton and Elm streets, so that there would be no congestion of traffic or delay for the delivery trucks. At very little expense the grounds could be beautified, so that they would compare very favorably with the grounds surrounding the incinerator plant at Shoretown, one of the wealthy suburbs of Milwaukee, where the plant stands in the midst of residences costing as much as $25,000. Putting the incinerator in Jones Park would also do away with the necessity of disturbing the city sheds on the fairgrounds before they fall down and at the same time would prevent any inconvenience to the coal and lumber yards, the garages, the butcher shops and switching yards, and other institutions in the neighborhood of the fairgrounds.

In all fairness this site should be thoroughly investigated before finally deciding upon a location for the new incinerator.

The Plains of Abraham
A Masterpiece of Fiction by James Oliver Curwood

INSTALLMENT II

It was the aliveness of this fireplace, which had drawn her and his hurricane, to the mastery, and the fragrance from the Caucuses—antique and the aroma of cooking things which, and for the earliest memories, or her brother, she had boasted of his excellence as a cook, and more. That was the world that had not since his unexpected arrival. Half a dozen chairs were dropped from their coils in the soup, and a faint blue flame rose from the fireplace seven feet above the fire, and from the pot-holes at the end of these chairs, as suspended as many pots and kettles, steaming and boiling and giving forth a cheerful sound of dancing never failing against which the bubbling water was playing an animated and pleasing melody. But to Henri, who was more interested in the sound of these busy pots with their lively cheer and promise of supper, a still more delightful lights, he was the roost of vanity, a great and broken sullen which Hepsebah had hung before the fire.

The time came off her cape and hood and put her hair more properly into place before a mirror hanging on the wall in the corner. Her heart was tripping as she took her hands and held them for a moment and smoothed them of her lashes. It had been was two years since she had seen Hepsebah, two years of your severe and his face for this irresponsible brother, the last of her closest blood ties, who came and went with a gay and light-hearted Spirit and yet had never succeeded in spoiling her dream of having him some day as a partner for her quiet little family.

Each time he came to them, Hepsebah was full of promise, swarming with plans and ideas, and using his mind to remain with them forever, as he pleased with them to do then, some day or another, and how they might disappear with all his belongings, and no one would see the urine of his soul, but be sure to steal away in the end as before.

Each time that he came, he bore a huge package on his shoulders, as if turning a peddler, and the opening of this package full of goods, to the distribution of it all. Her friends had come to be the biggest event with her, and also in his mother’s life. In the great haste, he had been busy for his gun in the company of his beloved Uncle Hep. At the most prevailing of all, all the people, all was for his side, and securing this mighty personage’s pledge of secrecy about the boy he had carried. Marking the grip of Jeems’ hand, and catching the telltale tremble in his voice, Hepsebah sat down upon the bag of corn goods and did not leave it until by shrewd questioning of the man and woman that he had drawn from Jeems heart a large part of what it had withheld from them. He told them that his heart was like a full moon of promise and cheer.

"It does’t take size to win a fight, Jeems," he said, speaking in a confidential way. "Barring this Dutchman afoot." He’ve drinking and roasting by a big man yet, and I'm only tolerable sized, you observe. I’ve always had a reasonable preference for the big ones, come as come can, for they are slower to move and fall harder, and nine out of ten of them carry fat-

"Three of the finest pipes I ever laid my eyes on," he announced. "One made in Holland, one in London, and one in America, and five pounds of Virginia tobacco to go with them. Hoo-ho, good with this pair o’ boots that may take you to honor to any swivel or gentry merely bucking this side of corn. That’s how that’s to be done, I stepped back as if his pack were entirely empty and yelled nothing at all for Jeems.

For an eternity, it seemed to Jeems, his uncle remained in this terrifying posture, then, with deliberate and aggravating slowness, Hepsebah Adams returned to his pack.

No one of the three who were watching him would ever have guessed that Hepsebah’s act was one weighty heavily with the cause of destiny, nor that with dramatic inevitability, it was to change the course of human lives, bringing the high down to earth, and the earthly to great heights, loosening passions and hatreds and loves, breeding tragedies and joys, and ending at last, in what it is the purpose of this humble chronicle of human events to narrate.

A sudden thought, a deë turn into the pack of a small bundle which he had intended for Jeems, not without a chuckle. On a more than its cleverness affects the most powerful of the fates sometimes real, the troubles of the side corn. No, etc., in the packing he brought this bundle to light once more and unwrapped it toward Jeems' big-cry, anxious face.

"Jeems," he said. "I've put the whole of my money in my right eye. It has been born on the coldest January day I ever saw, and that makes you just twelve years old. I've sold the old picnic for some years and only years to you, so as long as you are honest and set up, I shall be content. It's your problem, the best thing you can make out of the money I've left you. It's your problem, and I'll tell you about it every day. It's a killer, lad, a killer deadly and sure, good for a hundred paces with less than an inch of drop, and he gave the weapon, the fist, an instant of profound gathering in Catherine’s eyes.

Byrd Tells Adventures Into Land of Frozen South

The Great Admiral Tells His Story with Charm and Sincerity

To hold from Admiral Byrd's own lips his story of that tremendous, unpar-alleled adventure into the land of the frozen South! To see and to be in the presence of this great American hero whose vision, courage and ingenuity made the greatest exploit of our generation, an adventure as magnificent as the voyage of Columbus—this is the thrill the people of Appleton and neighboring towns will have next Wednesday evening, when the great explorer will speak at Law-rence chapel and illustrate his lecture with motion pictures made under his direction.

No one will forget this great story so simply and vividly told by the man who lived it. No one will forget the contact with Admiral Byrd, or willingly close the chance to be a part for one matchless evening of that gallant band of men who were the heroes of the bold adventure of the world. They planted the Stars and Stripes on the southernmost point of the globe.

The Antarctic has kept her own secrets locked in her crystal citadel at the bottom of the world for countless ages. At least two men, within our ken, have struggled across the center of her strength—Amundsen, who returned to tell the tale, and Scott, who perished on his journey. Then Byrd, winged with the genius of man's invention, soaring over 1,600 miles of glittering ice-bound silence reaches the Pole, straight as an arrow answering in its perfectly planned, perfectly timed flight. Here is a marvellous story of the conquerors, and stir the imagination of all.

Admiral Byrd has a delightful personality, a winning smile and a cordial friendliness that make it easy to understand his leadership of men. He is a fine speaker and tells the story of his adventure and achievement with extraordina-charm and sincerity.

Local Company Entertains Forty Chicago Printers

Forty members of the North Side Printers Guild of Chicago were in Ap-pleton Wednesday and Thursday as guests of the Fox River Paper com-pany. The Chicagoans arrived Wed-nesday afternoon in a special car and were met at the station by a delega-tion from the paper company, which escorted them to the Conway hotel where they were entertained during the evening. Thursday morning they inspected the plant of the Badger Printing company recognized as one of the most modern in this part of the country, and the plant of the Fox River Paper company, where they were taken through the various departments and shown the making of high grade writ-ing and bond papers in all its stages, from the bales of rags to the finished product, ready for the printer. Luncheon was enjoyed at the North Shore Country club and in the afternoon the Tealish mill of the Fox River Paper company was inspected, after which the visitors returned to Chicago.

November

Soft white moonlight nights—misty mornings—golden noons—hazy after- noons flaming into brilliant sunsets, then fading into early blue and purple twilight—cloudy skies, thickly inlaid with glittering stars—browner leaves—grayer skies—wilder winds. Apple trees and lilacs shedding off their clunging green in rough early gusts. But—tucked away in a lovely garden on Green Bay street, CIRCUS IN BLOOM.

Green is indicated as a color that soothes the nerves. It is—unless we are looking at a big green expanse of lawn that has to be mowed.

Saw an airman overhead. Saw a bird light gently and comfortably on a barber wire fence. Airman still has something to learn from bird, thought I.

Buying Fabrics for Home Use

The woman in the home, the home-maker, is the purchasing agent for that institution—even to buying most of the things that the men in the home use. A large part of these purchases is fab- rics, textiles, and Ruth O'Brien, Chief of the Textile division in the federal bureau of home economics, rises to ask what we know about them.

When we home makers go to make our purchases, how much real informa-tion do we have regarding the various quantities of the articles ordered? How many of our choices are made on the basis of some gaily colored advertise-ment, which after all gave us only an in- spirited feeling and really told us nothing? How often do we base our selec-tion entirely on the prices asked? In other words, how many purchases are sheer guesses? If we are honest with ourselves, we will admit that practically all of them are made in one of these ways.

This is particularly true of textile ma-terials. Time was, when the number of different fabrics on the market was so small, and our experience with them so intimate, that we really could judge quality. But today, there are literally thousands of different kinds of materials on the dry goods counters.

Most of them have been christened fancy names, which mean very little to us. Often they are made of new fibers about which we know nothing. However, there are some of us who believe that, if this important business of home making is to be carried on success- fully, it must first of all be based on sound business principles. And no busi- ness succeeds unless its purchasing is done intelligently. This means it must be done on the basis of facts and not by guess.

For example, when the Government buys sheets for the Government hos-pitals, definite specifications as to thread count, tensile strength, weight and amount of finishing material, are set up, and the sheeting furnished must comply with these specifications. Wouldn't it help us, if, when deciding between three or four different brands of sheets at the dry goods counter, we could know these facts about each and thus be able to de-termine which one best serves our pur-pose?

Some people insist that women will not take the trouble to learn the meaning of terms like tensile strength, thread count and such. And, of course, if we are to discuss the qualities of various articles intelligently, we must know the words which describe them accurately. But it is my experience that we will all learn even very technical words if we are interested in the subject. And women are certainly interested nowadays in doing more efficient purchasing.

I believe that the consumers of this county can become as well informed as any purchasing agent. Having lived through the period in which women have acquired a working knowledge of such terms as calories, vitamin, and proteins, I have faith that they can learn the sig-nificance of any descriptive terms neces-sary to a working knowledge of fabric specifications.

An eminently worthwhile subject for a whole series of programs for the women's clubs, this job of buying textiles.

It has always been our policy to handle only the outstanding sets in the radio field. Present day buyers of new radio receivers are in the market for permanency in their investment. This factor is dependent on a product that is up-to-date in general design, that is capable of truthful reproduction of both speech and music and that is backed by a manufacturer of long experience in making high grade equipment in the same line or closely allied lines.

For that reason we confine our lines to these leaders: the Stromberg-Carlson, Victor, and Bosch, knowing that there is nothing to compete with these sets in their respective price-classes.

GARDEN CLUBS MEET IN MADISON NEXT WEEK

Fruit growers, nurserymen and garden club members of the state will gather in joint convention at Madison next week Wednesday to Friday, according to announcement by the Wisconsin Horticultural society.

More than seventy-five years ago the county board of supervisors adopted a resolution to the effect that in their opinion, the organization of agricultural societies in this county has proved eminently beneficial to the agricultural and manufacturing interests and has a direct tendency to stimulate to increased action all departments of industry, and so they recommended that the citizens of the several towns in this county meet at the National Hotel in the village of Appleton, on the second day of January next for the purpose of organizing a county agricultural society.

The society was duly organized and we find it commended for giving "great encouragement to agriculture, horticulture and stock raising" early in the 50's. It has persisted all these years in one form or another of the various associations for improving cattle, hogs, horses, sheep, poultry, grains, fruit, and flowers, and in all probability descendants of those early proponents of better products from our lands will sit in at the sessions next week.

An exhibit of fruit and a contest for flower arrangement and luncheon table decoration by garden club members and amators are to be convention features.

Certificates of honorary recognition are to be presented to outstanding horticulturists by Gov. Kohler.

County Board Considers Proposed Vigilante System

(Continued from page 3) to become affiliated with the Wisconsin County Boards association and instructed the chairman to attend the meeting of that organization. A number of requests for refunds of taxes illegally collected were referred to the tax committee. Petitions for road improvement funds were referred to the highway committee. The board was asked by Supervisor Jansen of Little Chute to adopt a resolution approving raising of the lake level. A number of reports were read and filed.

The matter of creating a fund toward the establishment of a county poor home was laid over to the November 1931, session of the board. The committee, of which F. O. Smith, Hortonville, is chairman, advised deferring action as the county is not in a position now to make an appropriation toward such a fund.

The members of the library board, Frank Younger, and F. P. Young, appeared before the county law makers and asked that the appropriation made by the county toward the library, $500, be increased if possible. Their messages disclosed that there are now 760 county borrowers while a year ago there were 689. The per capita cost per borrower is $1.76, and while no definite amount was asked, the per capita cost was suggested as a tentative basis for determining the amount of the appropriation.

Just prior to the noon adjournment, Supervisor T. H. Ryan presented the county court house problem. It is evident, he said, that within a very short time the county will have to construct a new court house, the present one now being in a deplorable condition. While economy is the keynote of this session of the board, Mr. Ryan pointed out that delay in constructing the new court house, the new court house would be false economy. He reminded the board that there is available already the sum of $310,000 in the court house fund, and with an additional appropriation of about $50,000 the first unit could be constructed next year, at a saving to the county. Investigation had revealed to him, reported that on the price of material alone, the county, if it built the unit next year, could save $15,000, or $60,000. On the other hand, immediate construction would take up some of the labor surplus and give men an opportunity to earn their livelihood who otherwise might become county charges. He stated that both federal and private money had urged municipalities to engage in whatever improvement work they possibly could to relieve the unemployment. One unit could be constructed in the spring, and the two other units deferred perhaps for several years, Mr. Ryan said. The matter was presented to the board, Mr. Ryan declared, early in the session so that the individual members would have time to investigate the matter, inspect the court house and talk with contractors regarding the probable saving in cost if the work were done this next spring.

Wednesday the members of the board were guests at the annual dinner at the county asylum. Thursday morning was taken up with a discussion of the proposed vigilante system. Opinions were found to differ widely, with the majority sentiment opposed to the system as proposed. The matter was finally laid over and will again be taken up later in the session.

Presbyterian Church Celebrates Anniversary

Memorial Presbyterian church observed its sixtieth anniversary with a supper and program at the church hall Thursday evening. Dr. Herbert M. Moore, pastor of the church from 1907 to 1912, was toastmaster. Dr. Moore also gave an address on "Looking Back." Rev. Louis P. Pecke, Fond du Lac, who supplied the pulpit at the Presbyterian church for a while, gave an address on "Looking Around." Dr. John H. Denyes of Lawrence college gave a talk on "Looking In;" Rev. E. W. Wright, Menomonee, Mich., and Dr. Reuben S. Opheim, of Michigan, "Looking Up;" Mrs. Mable O. Shannon, president of the Ladies Aid society, "A Woman's Way of Looking at Things;" and the Rev. R. A. Garrison spoke on "Looking Forward." It was furnished during the supper by Miss Ethel Snauwel, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Annette Hailer, and the Mandolin orchestra. Mrs. Frank W. Schneider read greetings from the Wisconsin Synod.

The Presbyterians held services in Appleton in 1850, the year after the settlement of Appleton. The first distinctly Presbyterian organization was established in 1870, the services being held in a house held at the Edgerton house. For eight years the Presbyterians and Congregationalists worshiped as one congregation. The society of the Memorial Presbyterian church was organized in 1875, so named in honor of David Smith, who left a legacy for the erection of a new church building.

The Ladies' Aid society served the supper, the committee in charge included Mrs. Mabel McKeel, Mrs. H. T. Johnson, Mrs. F. W. Clippinger, Mrs. F. P. Martin, Mrs. G. F. Werner, Mrs. O. E. Clark, Mrs. J. A. Wood, and Mrs. Louis Fleck.

D. J. Kenny Speaker At Legion Celebration

Three hundred guests, including five veterans of the German army, members of the city council and county board, and members of the Onay Johnson Post of the American Legion attended the annual Armistice day celebration held at Rainbow Gardens Tuesday evening. The dinner was served by the auxiliary unit.

The Rev. L. D. Utts, rector of all Saints Episcopal church, gave the invocation. Music was furnished by the Rainbow Gardens orchestra.

A school bell, used to sound an alarm during the revolutionary war, was presented to the post by Mrs. Eva Gurnee. Robert Connolly told the history of the bell, and Fred Heinritz, commander of the post, accepted it. Mrs. Harold Miller, president of the auxiliary, reported that the auxiliary had given over the top in the 1931 membership race. The post, according to a report made by Commander Heinritz, forwarded 453 memberships to Milwaukee headquarters in the Armistice day airplane drive.

Vanderbilt skits, "Moonshine" by J. F. Bannister and Martin VanRooy, and "Revenge" by Mr. Bannister, Harry Oaks, and Robert Connolly were presented at the post's annual meeting of the auxiliary. Address of the program was given by D. J. Kenny, West Bend, a former commander, and chief de garde of the national 40 and 8. The Rev. L. D. Utts gave a tribute to the departed comrades, after which toasts were sounded, and the program closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Noisemakers and hats were distributed to the guests, and the floor cleared for dancing.

And so Beloit had themselves a homecoming. The alumni returned, a big parade was staged, and last but not least there was a football game between the now in-existence and the Vikings. How a homecoming should be a time of joy and gladness and the wallowing of a time honored rival is an essential part of the fun. Having participated in two of these festivities this year and having had the privilege of the last few from the very rowdy band and the spouting of the rivalry of the occasion at the site.

The teams had battled without a score for three periods and into the fourth when Frank Schencker and his mates in the Blue forward wall nailed a Beloit youth back of his goal line. The score was then 0-0. According to the rule the ball must be put into play by a kick so Beloit proceeded to propel the ball far down the fairway into the waiting hands of Paul Fischel, our own "Flying Dutchman." Paul decided that he needed exercise so he immediately rushed to the goal mouth and scored which terminated a few seconds later on the productive side of the Beloit goal. The final tally was 9-0 in favor of Lawrence.

Co-Captain Ken Laird played in the last quarter which was the first time that he had ever seen action since he broke his jaw in the Wisconsin game.

The Sunset Players’ production, "The Truth About Clydes," was presented before a large crowd last Friday. The play was the first of a series to be given throughout the year.

The college students and faculty had a group picture taken Wednesday morning in front of the chapel.

The latest fad seems to be the cultivation of mustaches. This of course is fairly new for the men and they seem to rejoice in the fact that they are doing something that the female element can’t indulge in.

Hope to be able to report a victory over Carleton next week.

The intra-mural basketball tournament is still in session. Games are scheduled until December 19. In the ninth grade the Michigan team, captained by Robert DeBoer, and the Indians, captained by Thomas Miller, are the only undefeated teams; in the eighth grade, the Foxes, captained by Raymond VanOyen, and the Panthers, captained by Lawrence Herzog, remain undefeated; and in the seventh grade the Steam Rollers, captained by Billy Catlin, and the Gas House Boys, captained by Kenneth Buening, have no losses charged against them.

The ninth grade girls of Roosevelt visited Hopkins' soccer match during the past week. Different cuts of meat were exhibited and the methods of cooking each cut was learned.

The 8X section gave a dinner Wednesday evening at the school, having completed 9 weeks of food work. A delicious dinner was served.

The second number of the year was given Thursday evening at the Roosevelt auditorium at 8:00, featuring Eugene Frye and company presenting a three-act magic comedy drama, "Mr. Reel." The story of the play revolves around the fortunes of an aspiring young magician. His struggles and triumphs over natural obstacles, as well as difficulties created through the efforts of other characters in the play form a fascinating story.

Rev. Utts, rector of the Episcopal church, addressed the student body in an assembly program this afternoon.

An Armistice day program was held November 11. A flag salute was led by Stanley Jury. Speakers were Clarence Baetz and Mr. McCre. Mr. Baetz is ex-commander of the American Legion and Mr. McCre is in charge of the life saving division of the Red Cross.

A father, his son, and a relative are dead as the result of a hold-up of a farm home near Roselbow Tuesday, two men and a woman. The dead are Patrick Gorman and his son Paul, of Huron, S. D., and Cornelius Hurriquin, one of the owners of the farm. Tales of buried treasure on the farm are supposed to have lured the robbers who at first posed as hunters and asked permission to shoot on the land.
