* Includes 38 Italian railroad construction workers temporarily residing in Schleisingerville.
 Estimate for January, 1993, per State Department of Revenue.

Median Home Value 1992: $92,254
Average Household Income: $30,965 per 1990 census

10.34 NK. This picture of East Washington Street was taken around 1915. On the left is St. Peter's old school. Next door is the convent. Further down the same side of the street, is the Boehning farm. The five houses on the right make up what was referred to as Beiner's Subdivision. This area has been the site of substantial development starting with Scenic Heights in 1954. Glenn Hill, Woodside Heights and St. Paul's subdivisions are now all to the left of East Washington Street. Cobblestone Corner and the Village Square Shopping Center are to the right.

SUBDIVISIONS

Baruch Schleisinger Weil purchased 1,950 acres of land in the Town of Polk from the U.S. Government at a cost of 25 cents per acre. On 527 acres he plotted the Village of Schleisingerville. The land was placed in his son's name and it wasn't until 1853 that B. S. Weil's name was added as an owner of many of the lots in Schleisingerville. The original lots in the village were valued at $1. By 1852 the lot value reached $10. In 1869, the year the village was incorporated, lot values ranged from $15-$30 and by 1880 the values ranged from $25-$40.

The 1860 census lists Baruch Schleisinger Weil's value of real estate owned at $100,000. This value far exceeded that of any other land owner in the area.
