ALMOND, 504

This Portage county town is located in a potato growing and dairying district.

PORTAGE COUNTY PRESS

Circulation 750

The Press was founded in 1901. Its present editor is Ernest B. Inglo.

AMERY, 1,203

Located in the heart of an extensive dairy country, Amery lists dairy products as its chief mainstay. Many cheese factories and creameries are located in an ever-widening circle that encloses the dairy farms of this section of Polk county.

AMERY FREE PRESS

Circulation 1486

Founded in 1892 by Mark Frissell, later editors of The Press were G. Gunderson and William Harding. The present owner and publisher, B. R. Atwood, assumed charge in 1906 and has been in continuous service for 19 years.

AMHERST, 588

Located in a farming section in Portage county, Amherst has within its boards flour mills, creamery and potato warehouses.

AMHERST ADVOCATE

Circulation 800

In 1893, this weekly was established. Its present editor is J. L. Moberg.

ANTIGO, 8,541

Lumbering once reigned supreme in this section of Langlade county. Though still important, farming now occupies as equally a high position. In Antigo are foundry and machine shops, broom-handle and furniture factories and planning and saw mills.