MORNING MOOD

It was on Christmas morning,
The shrubs and trees in the yard
Were heavily loaded with snow and frost.
Everything was very white. In the valley
The pines stood with their branches touching
The ground. A small stream broke through
The snow in places and trickled down its
Winding course among the trees.

- Frederick Keil - '37