

GRUESOME HARVEST

By

Ralph Franklin Keeling

"If war should come, whichever side may claim ultimate victory, nothing is more certain than that victor and vanquished alike would glean a gruesome harvest of human misery and suffering."

—PRIME MINISTER NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN
July 31, 1939, to the House of Commons

INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN ECONOMICS

Publishers and Distributors

127 N. Dearborn Street

CHICAGO

1947

Copyright, 1947, by
INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN ECONOMICS
All rights reserved

Printed in the United States of America
by the Keystone Printing Service, Inc., Libertyville, Ill.