Elections in Wisconsin: 1982 and 1983 primary and general election statistics

ELECTIONS IN WISCONSIN

A Capsule View

The laws governing all elections in Wisconsin are set forth generally in Chapters 5 to 12 of the Wisconsin Statutes. There are 4 regular elections to engage the voter's attention — the spring primary in February and the spring election in April of each year, and the September primary and November general election in the even-numbered years. Officers who are elected on a non-partisan basis are chosen in the spring. These comprise town, village, city and school district officers, county board members, county executives, all judicial officers and the state superintendent of public instruction. Officers elected on a partisan basis are chosen in the fall and include county administrative officials, members of the legislature, state constitutional officers except the state superintendent, and members of Congress. Not all of these officers are elected at every election.

In presidential election years the presidential preference vote is held at the spring election, while the vote for president occurs at the general (November) election. At some elections, the Wisconsin voters are also asked to advise the state legislature or local legislative bodies on matters of public policy (referenda) or to ratify or reject a proposed law or an amendment to the Wisconsin Constitution.

The Wisconsin Electorate

Size of the Electorate. Because Wisconsin does not maintain a statewide register of voters, the exact size of the electorate is unknown. On April 1, 1980, Wisconsin population 18 years of age and older numbered 3,347,947, but not all of these were qualified to vote in Wisconsin elections. Since 2,273,221 votes were cast for president in that year, it can be assumed that about 68 percent of the eligible voters participated in the election. There were 1,580,344 votes cast for governor in 1982.

Age Requirements. Although Article III of the Wisconsin Constitution provides that "every person of the age of twenty-one years or upwards" may vote in Wisconsin if he or she fulfills certain other requirements, the 26th Amendment to the United States Constitution, ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the states (including Wisconsin), extended the right to vote to those 18 years and over. Therefore, regardless of the wording of the Wisconsin Constitution, the voting age in this state is now 18 for all elections. The change has been made in the Wisconsin Statutes.

Residence Requirements. One of the voting requirements is residence. In Wisconsin state and local elections, the privilege of voting is granted to citizens of the United States who have resided in the state and election district or ward where they propose to vote for 10 days prior to the election. Under the statutes a person's residence is defined as "the place where his habitation is fixed, without any present intent to move, and to which, when absent, he intends to return".

New residents who otherwise qualify as voters are permitted to vote for president and vice president, regardless of how short a time they have been Wisconsin residents. Beginning with the 1964 presidential election, ex-residents of Wisconsin who moved within 24 months preceding the election to another state have been permitted to vote for presidential electors in Wisconsin unless they had meanwhile become eligible to vote in another state. In accordance with federal law, U.S. citizens living in a foreign country may vote in federal elections in Wisconsin if they last resided here before leaving the United States.

History of the Suffrage. When Wisconsin became a state in 1848, suffrage was restricted to white (and emancipated Indian) male residents including immigrants not yet naturalized. A referendum approved in November of 1849 extended suffrage to colored male residents. In 1908, the Wisconsin Constitution was amended to restrict the right to vote to citizens of the United States. Women's suffrage came with the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution (ratified by Wisconsin on June 10, 1919).

Voter Registration. Based on a constitutional amendment ratified in 1882, the Wisconsin Legislature "may provide for the registration of electors". Today, voter registration in Wisconsin is by law required for every town, village or city with a population of more than 5,000 and may by local ordinance be adopted for municipalities of having a population of 5,000 or less. Voters may register at any of the following places: office of the municipal clerk; office of the county register of deeds and office of the city clerk in Milwaukee; any other location designated by the municipal clerk (such as fire stations, libraries, etc.) or as part of a door-to-door voter registration campaign; and at the polling place on election day. High school students and staff may, in addition, register at public or, in some cases, private high schools designated by the municipal clerk. Municipal voter registration in Wisconsin does not record the party affiliation of the voter. Chapter 85, Laws of 1975, provided for voter registration by mail, registration at the polls on election day and removal of the 6-month state residency requirement. The residency change was also approved by the electorate, as required by the Constitution, in a November 1976 referendum.

Selection of Candidates

Primaries. Election to public office requires 3 distinct steps: the selection of possible candidates (inferring that all potential candidates are qualified), the nomination of candidates in a primary, and the election of officeholders in the general election.

Until "Fighting Bob" La Follette became governor of our state, candidates for public office were selected at caucuses or conventions composed of delegates, of members of a political party, or of eligible voters. Contrary to popular belief, the Wisconsin nominating caucuses did not imply political deals hatched in smoke-filled rooms — the caucuses were subject to legal regulations equally as stringent as our modern election laws.

In most instances, candidates are chosen today in primary elections; the nominating caucus remains as an optional method for the selection of town and village office candidates. In most cases where nominations are made by means other than the nominating caucus method, aspirants to elective office circulate nomination papers to be signed by a specified number of voters in the constituency.

Primary elections are held in Wisconsin to determine the candidates for both the partisan "general elections" held in November and for the nonpartisan "spring elections" held in April. The spring primary is held on the third Tuesday in February; the fall primary, on the second Tuesday in September.

Nonpartisan February Primary. Nonpartisan primaries are required only under certain conditions. If 3 or more candidates run for state superintendent, county supervisor, any judicial office, or certain other offices, a primary election must be held, and the names of the 2 candidates receiving the greatest number of votes are placed on the ballots for the nonpartisan election. This is also applicable to municipalities adopting the system of nominating candidates by primary election. In nonpartisan primaries, the 2 aspirants receiving the highest number of votes for a specific office are selected as the candidates for that office in the nonpartisan final election.

Partisan September Primary. Primaries are held, regardless of the number of aspirants, to select the candidates of each political party for each partisan general election. Since the purpose of a partisan primary is to nominate the candidates that a political party will run against the nominees of the other party in the general election, only the adherents of a particular party are expected to vote in that party's primary. Most states have a closed primary system, which requires the voter to declare his party allegiance before receiving the ballot of that party. Wisconsin's "open primary" law makes the choice a private matter; that is, the voter does not have to make a public declaration of his party affiliation to receive the ballot of that party (a closed primary). Instead, he is given the ballots of all parties, but votes his choices on one party's ballot only. The voter cannot split his ticket and select candidates at random from several ballots. The provision that requires voters to vote for candidates of only one party is often confusing or frustrating to voters.

Wisconsin adopted the open primary law for partisan offices in 1903 (Chapter 451, Laws of 1903), and the law was amended in 1905 to apply to the selection of national convention delegates.

In partisan primaries, the nominee receiving the highest number of votes becomes his party's candidate for the office, but a write-in candidate qualifies only if the vote for him also equals at least 5 percent of the party vote for governor cast in the district at the last general election, or the number of signatures required on nomination papers for the office, whichever is greater.

The only other partisan officers chosen are party ward committeemen, who are elected at September primaries in even-numbered years. Ward committeemen cannot be elected by write-in vote. Party ward committeemen (required to reside in district, ward or municipality for which they were elected) recommend names of electors to be appointed election officials by the governing body of each town, village, and city.

Presidential Preference Vote. On the first Tuesday in April of each presidential election year, Wisconsin voters are given an opportunity to express their preference for the person to be the presidential candidate of their party.

Meeting on the last Tuesday in January of that year, a bipartisan committee certifies to the Elections Board the names of all nationally advocated or recognized candidates to be placed on the ballot. The members of the committee consist of the state chairman and the national committeeman and committeewoman from each party entitled to a separate ballot or column, the speaker of the Assembly, the president of the Senate and the minority leader of each house of the legislature. An additional member is elected by the committee and serves as chairman. Any potential candidate may withdraw his name from the ballot by filing a disclaimer with the Elections Board, no later than the second Thursday following the third Tuesday in February, that he or she is not and does not intend to become a candidate for the office of president of the United States at the forthcoming presidential election. Other candidates may be placed on the ballot by filing nomination petitions with the Elections Board, signed by a specified percentage of qualified electors, by the second Thursday following the third Tuesday in February. In addition, the ballot of each major party provides space for a write-in vote.

There is no filing of delegate lists prior to the primary. After the results of the primary are determined, each state organization selects as many delegates or alternates as are permitted or allotted by the party's national committee. Delegates must be pledged to represent the presidential candidate in accordance with the primary vote. However, the presidential candidate has until June 10 to review this slate of delegates and replace any of the recommended list with his own choices. Not less than two-thirds of the convention votes must be designated by congressional districts. The total number of delegates and convention votes allocated to each state is not determined by state law, but by the national committee of each party and is based on the number of congressional districts and the prior voting record of the state. Unless prevented by the death of the candidate, delegates must pledge to vote in accordance with the results of the presidential preference vote on the first and subsequent ballots until the candidate to whom they are pledged either fails to obtain at least one-third of the authorized convention vote or until that candidate releases the delegates. Thereafter, the Wisconsin delegates may support any other candidates of their choice.

The Wisconsin presidential preference vote is also an open primary. In order to reduce the temptation of crossover voting, each ballot provides for a protest "no" vote against the candidate or slate of candidates listed on that ballot. If a plurality of the voters in any district or the state at large casts their ballots for "none of the names shown", or against the single name shown on the ballot, the party organization selects the delegates to attend the national convention as an uninstructed delegation.

The open primary aspect of the state's presidential preference primary has caused considerable problems with the National Democratic Party. Although the Wisconsin Supreme Court in January 1980 decided that the state's delegate selection system was constitutional and binding and that the national party could not refuse to seat delegates chosen under Wisconsin law, the U.S. Supreme Court, in February 1981, reversed the state court's decision by holding that Wisconsin law cannot force the national party to seat delegates chosen in a way that violates the party's rules. The exact role that Wisconsin's presidential preference primary will play in selecting delegates for the 1984 national conventions is unclear at this time. Since the National Republican Party allows open primaries, Wisconsin Republicans have had no problems with the open presidential primary.

Elections

The Partisan "General" November Elections. From among the candidates chosen at the partisan primaries in September, the people of Wisconsin select, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of each even-numbered year, the elected officials of the state and its counties. The choice is between the single candidate for each major political party who received the highest number of votes for a particular office in the partisan primary and the "independent" candidates who are affiliated with minor parties or who are unaffiliated. "Write-in" votes may be cast for persons whose names do not appear on the ballot.

The constitutional offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, and attorney general are filled from the state at large. The constitutional officers are elected for 4-year terms in the general elections 2 years after each U.S. presidential election. At every general election, a representative in Congress is elected from each of the congressional districts and a representative to the Assembly from each of the Assembly districts. United States senators, who serve 6 years, are also chosen at the general election. The 33 state senators are elected for 4 years — one-half at each general election from the odd-numbered or even-numbered Senate districts. A clerk, treasurer, sheriff, clerk of circuit court, district attorney, and register of deeds are elected biennially from each of the 72 counties in the state, and approximately one-half of the counties elect a surveyor and all counties elect a coroner or a medical examiner. Dunn, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Milwaukee, Oneida, Racine and Taylor have a medical examiner system. Article VI, Section 4 of the Wisconsin Constitution, ratified in April 1965, abolished the offices of county coroner and surveyor in counties having a population of 500,000 or more, while a 1972 amendment allowed counties below 500,000 the option of retaining the office of coroner or instituting a medical examining system. In lieu of electing a county surveyor, Section 59.12 of the Wisconsin Statutes authorizes county boards to designate any registered land surveyor employed by the county to perform the duties of the county surveyor.

Vacancies in the offices of representatives in Congress, state senators, and representatives to the Assembly may be filled by special election only. A vacancy in the office of U.S. senator may be filled by appointment until it can be filled at a general election. Vacancies in state constitutional offices and county offices are filled by appointment except that the lieutenant governor constitutionally succeeds the governor in case of a vacancy in the office of governor (the secretary of state is third in line of succession). Appointments to fill vacancies on the state level and for most county offices are made by the governor.

Presidential Electors, Electoral College. In each presidential election year, each major political party's nominees for state and legislative offices, state officers and the holdover state senators hold a convention in the state Capitol on the first Tuesday in October to nominate their party's slate of presidential electors for president and vice president. Minor party and other "independent" candidates file their slate of electors with their nomination papers. Although the names of the electors no longer appear on the presidential ballots, every vote cast for the names of the candidates for president and vice president of each party is a vote for each of the electors committed to that slate. The electors of the presidential slate receiving the greatest number of votes become members of the electoral college and meet at 12 noon on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December to cast the vote officially for president and vice president in Wisconsin. The number of electors chosen for each slate is equal to the state's delegation in Congress. One presidential elector is chosen from each congressional district and 2 are chosen at large. Wisconsin had 12 electoral votes in 1968; because of the reduction of its congressional districts from 10 to 9, the number of its electoral college votes in 1972, 1976 and 1980 was 11. Under the 1980 census, Wisconsin retains its 11 electoral votes in 1984.

Nonpartisan April Elections. Nonpartisan elections are held on the first Tuesday of April for state superintendent of public instruction, judicial officers, county executive officers, town, village and city officers, county supervisors, and school board members. The terms of office vary, so only certain offices are voted on each year. The only nonpartisan offices voted for on a statewide basis are state superintendent and justices of the Supreme Court; all others are elected from the county, district, or municipality represented. In addition to the Supreme Court, consisting of 7 justices, there is a Court of Appeals, elected at large from one of the 4 appellate districts, with 3 judges from each district, serving for staggered 6-year terms. Pursuant to 1978 legislation enacted by the Wisconsin Legislature, the state is provided with a "single level" trial court system, consisting of 190 circuit judges (the former county judges are denominated as circuit judges). Each county is a circuit with the exception of the following 3 combined county districts: Buffalo-Pepin, Shawano-Menominee and Forest-Florence. Individual county circuit courts are comprised of varying numbers of branches, with each branch headed by one judge.

The governor has power to fill by temporary appointment vacancies which might occur in nonpartisan state elective offices. Many of the state's justices and judges first achieved judicial office through appointment by the governor; thus, gubernatorial appointments to a considerable extent determine the composition of the Wisconsin judiciary.

Constitutional Amendments; Referenda; Recall

Referenda. The referendum, as a companion procedure to the initiative, may be simply described as the process of referring a measure to the people via an election. This term is not to be confused with initiative, which involves the entire process whereby a number of voters may by petition propose legislation and require that it be submitted to a popular vote. The voters of Wisconsin can utilize the initiative procedure only at the local level.

On the state level, there are at least 5 types of referenda. Most of these are procedures known as "indirect initiative", that is, the legislature itself initiates the proposal and then submits it to the people for ratification. The term "direct initiative" usually is used when a proposal is initiated by petition of the electorate. In Wisconsin, the recall is the only example of direct initiative at the state level. The five types of state referenda may be described as (1) measures involving amendments to the constitution, (2) measures extending the right of suffrage, (3) legislation requiring ratification prior to becoming effective, (4) measures requesting the recall of an elected official, and (5) advisory referenda.

The most recent statewide advisory referendum submitted to the voters requested the President and Congress of the United States to negotiate with the Soviet Union and other nations a mutual nuclear weapons moratorium with appropriate verification and was approved by the electorate in September 1982.

County boards may submit advisory or ratifying referenda to county voters. Municipalities also have the right to submit referenda questions relating to village and city charter ordinances and certain other subjects affecting the government of the municipalities. In cities, electors may by petition require the common council to adopt an ordinance or resolution or submit it to a referendum.

In addition, all proposed amendments to the constitution must be ratified by the people before they can become effective. Thus, the voters of Wisconsin may be asked at an election to approve a change in the state constitution or express their preference on a matter of public policy. With 2 exceptions, all questions have been submitted by the legislature to the electorate at "spring elections" in April or "general elections" in November. Two (nonconstitutional) referenda, one relating to a World War I soldiers' bonus, was submitted at the 1919 September primary and was approved by the electors, and the other, relating to a mutual nuclear weapons moratorium, was submitted at the 1982 September primary and was also approved by the voters.

Constitutional Amendments. The procedure for amending the Wisconsin Constitution is adoption of an identical amendment by 2 consecutive legislatures and ratification of the amendment by a majority vote of the people at a subsequent election.

In recent years the electorate has voted on a number of constitutional amendments. For example, in the April 1979 election, an amendment was ratified consisting of 4 separate questions — providing for gubernatorial succession, filling a vacancy in the office of lieutenant governor, selection of the Senate's presiding officer, and making miscellaneous revisions to clarify the text. In the April 1981 election, 4 constitutional amendments (consisting of 5 questions), were ratified providing for primaries in recall elections, revising the right to bail, removing obsolete provisions on corporations and banking, and extending the indebtedness period for sewage collection or treatment systems in counties and sewage districts over 150,000 and in all cities. In the April 1982 election, one amendment was ratified authorizing county responsibility for acts of the sheriff, while in November 1982, additional obsolete provisions were removed.

Recall. The Wisconsin Constitution and statutes also provide for the recall of elective officers after the first year of a term through a process of petition and special election. In August 1977, for example, 5 La Crosse school board members were recalled, and in September 1977 a county judge was recalled from office. This was the first time in Wisconsin history that a judge had been recalled from office.

The Mechanics of the Election Process

Certifying candidates, registering voters, and recording, tallying and reporting the votes of over 2 million people is a complex process. Who handles it? First of all, the process is guided by explicit state laws. Detailed specifications concerning the content of the ballot, for example, are set forth in the statutes. The Wisconsin Elections Board, which administers the election laws for the state, prepares all official ballot forms and other election forms, promulgates rules for the use of voting machines, certifies to each county clerk the list of candidates for state offices, and performs other duties pertaining to elections.

For the potential voter, the election process begins when he registers to vote with the clerk of his municipality or — in Milwaukee — with the city Board of Election Commissioners. Registration is optional for municipalities having a population of 5,000 or less. A voter's registration is permanent unless he moves; then he must reregister.

County clerks are responsible for preparing the ballots to be used for the election of all offices on the county level or above, and for distribution of them to the municipal clerks; municipal clerks supervise registration and elections in their municipalities; in cities or counties over 500,000 population, election duties are performed by a city board of election commissioners and a county board of election commissioners.

On election day at each polling place, there are normally stationed 3 inspectors, 2 elections clerks, and — unless voting machines are used — 2 ballot clerks. The law requires all cities, villages and towns having a population of 10,000 or more to use voting machines. Electronic voting systems may now be used in lieu of mechanical voting machines. Each political party may also appoint 2 observers and alternates for each polling place. Certain candidates and nonpartisan and bipartisan groups may also appoint observers. A voter who cannot come to the polling place on election day, either because of absence from the municipality, sickness, handicap, age, disability, military service, jury duty or religious reasons may vote by absentee ballot.

When the polls close, the inspectors canvass the votes and deliver one tally sheet statement and registration or poll list each to the county clerk and to the municipal clerk. Where electronic voting systems are used, the count may be adjourned to a central location. The county clerk and 2 citizens appointed by him (including one from another political party) constitute the county board of canvassers, which examines the returns. One statement of the results is filed in the county clerk's office; another statement, to which is attached a tabulation of votes cast as each polling place for each candidate, goes to the state Elections Board. The county clerk also issues certificates of election to the elected officials within the county.

The Board of State Canvassers, consisting of the chairperson of the state Elections Board, state treasurer, and attorney general, meets after each election to examine the certified statements of the county canvassers. The board makes a statements of the votes cast for each office and determines who has been elected. The Elections Board then issues certificates of election to all persons elected to a state office. The board also issues certificates or prepares certificates for issuance by the governor to persons elected to national offices from this state.

Campaign Financing

The regulation of campaign financing in Wisconsin was substantially revised by Chapter 334, Laws of 1973, with the intent of furnishing the voters with complete information as to who is supporting or opposing which candidate or cause and to what extent, either directly or indirectly. Chapter 11 of the Wisconsin Statutes regulates campaign financing, while Chapter 12 defines prohibited election practices. Chapter 11 was augmented by the 1977 Wisconsin Legislature, which created a system of public grants for the campaigns of eligible candidates for state offices. Numerous minor revisions were also made in the campaign finance law by the 1979 Wisconsin Legislature.

Duties of the Elections Board. The Elections Board furnishes candidates and committees with forms for making reports, furnishes manuals setting forth recommended methods of bookkeeping and reporting, compiles and maintains a current list of all reports and statements pertaining to each candidate, individual, committee or group, and prepares special reports. It includes in its biennial report statistics concerning the total contributions and expenditures of candidates and committees, amounts over $100 contributed by contributors, and additional data. It investigates violations of the election laws and must notify the district attorney, the attorney general or the governor of any facts within its knowledge or evidence in its possession that might be grounds for civil action or criminal prosecution. Similar requirements are made with regard to financial reporting in local elections.

The board also supervises the auditing of campaign finance reports submitted in connection with state elections.

Contributions and Disbursements. Every political party committee, other political committee or political group which makes or accepts contributions or makes disbursements in an amount exceeding $25 per year and every individual who accepts contributions or makes disbursements in an amount exceeding $25 per year files a verified statement with the appropriate filing officer (the Elections Board in the case of state or national officers or a statewide referendum). A candidate must file a statement for any amount. The statement includes such items as the name and address of the registrant, the officers, the campaign depository, and the names of the candidates or the nature of the referendum supported or opposed; and the area, scope or jurisdiction of the registrant.

Subsequently, such committees, groups or individuals must file full reports of all contributions received, obligations incurred and disbursements made, including the name, address and total contribution of each contributor donating over $20; an itemization of disbursements over $20 to other registrants; and a separate statement giving the name, address, occupation, place of employment and contribution of any contributor donating more than $100 in any calendar year. Nonresident committees, groups or individuals making contributions or disbursements in this state must also file their names and addresses and that of a designated agent in the state with the secretary of state. Some candidates and others whose financial activity does not exceed $500 per year may be exempted from reporting. Political party committees with less than $1,000 per year of financial activity may be similarly exempted.

Single Campaign Treasurer. Each candidate must appoint one campaign treasurer and designate one campaign depository before receiving any contributions or making any disbursements. Each candidate and his campaign treasurer must file a registration statement. Unless exempted from reporting, each candidate or the treasurer acting on his behalf must file periodic financial reports, for which the candidate is responsible as to correctness.

Contribution by Negotiable Instrument. All campaign contributions exceeding $50 must be made by check or other negotiable instrument, so that the origin is known. All campaign disbursements must be made or reimbursed by negotiable instrument drawn upon the campaign depository. Anonymous contributions exceeding $10 cannot be expended but must be donated either to a charity or to the common school fund. All contributions must be made in the name of the contributor.

Limitations on Contributions. Limitations are imposed upon the amount that may be received by candidates. No one individual (except a candidate) may contribute more than the specified amounts to any of the following candidates and any individual or voluntary committee supporting him: constitutional administrative officers (governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, superintendent of public instruction), and Supreme Court justice — $10,000; state senator — $1,000; representative to the Assembly — $500; and all other state and local candidates — a limit which varies between $250 and $3,000 depending upon the office. Furthermore, no individual may make a contribution to all candidates in excess of a total of $10,000 in any calendar year.

No committee other than a political party committee may make any contributions to a candidate for one of the constitutional administrative offices or justice of the Supreme Court of more than 4 percent of the candidate's disbursement level specified by law; nor may such a committee make contributions to candidates for other state and local offices in excess of monetary limits specified by law.

No political party may receive more than $75,000 of its contributions in any calendar year from all other committees, nor more than $6,000 from any specific committee or its subunits. No committee other than a political party committee may make any contribution or contributions to a political party exceeding $6,000 per calendar year.

No candidate may receive more than 65 percent of the total authorized disbursement level specified by rule of the State Elections Board from all other committees, including political party committees. Of this amount, not more than 45% may be received from special interest committees.

Disbursements from the campaign depository may not be made anonymously, nor may contributions or disbursements be made in a fictitious name. The source of all political advertisements must appear thereon.

Political Action Committees. A political action committee (PAC) is any combination of two or more persons that receives contributions which are intended exclusively for political purposes. The committee makes contributions to candidates or committees or make disbursements on behalf of candidates or committees. PACs are often sponsored by trade or professional associations or labor organizations and draw their memberships from them. PACs also raise money to urge adoption or defeat of referenda.

In addition, political action committees often make contributions to multiple candidates and do not necessarily support one particular party over the other.

Although the small contributions from individuals still represent the major source of campaign contributions, most special-interest contributions are received from PACs, which gave $646,457 compared to $125,858 for individual contributions of over $100 for 1979-80.

Political action committees currently may not contribute more than $14,000 per campaign to a gubernatorial candidate, $1,000 per campaign to a state senatorial candidate and $500 per campaign to an Assembly candidate.

Public Campaign Financing. Under Chapter 107, Laws of 1977, a campaign fund was created in the state treasury consisting of general tax revenues from each person filing a state income tax return who specifies that $1 shall be set aside for this fund. The fund is available to candidates for statewide executive and judicial offices, as well as legislative offices, for use after the primary, provided that they obtain a specified number of votes in the primary and they raise a specified initial amount of private contributions from individuals in amounts of $100 or less. Participants must agree to accept spending limits and limits placed on personal contributions to their own campaigns in order to receive moneys from the fund, unless their opponents qualify for a grant but decline to accept it (thereby releasing themselves from adherence to the limits). The fund is apportioned by office in accordance with a specified formula. Moneys accepted count towards the maximum limit of 45 percent of a candidate's spending limit which may be accepted from special interest committees, thereby substantially limiting this source of contributions for those who participate. The act also made spending limits (which apply only to candidates who accept moneys from the fund) subject to an automatic cost of living adjustment. This, in turn, impacts on certain contribution limitations which are figured as percentages of the disbursement levels. Moneys from the fund may be used only for advertising in communications media, printing, office supplies and postage; other campaign expenses must be privately financed.

Prohibited Election Practices

Chapter 12 of the statutes lists prohibited election practices, such as practices involving bribery, fraud, election threats, and illegal actions of election officials.
