Elections in Wisconsin: 1986 and 1987 primary, general and special election statistics

ELECTIONS IN WISCONSIN

A Capsule View

The laws governing all elections in Wisconsin are set forth generally in Chapters 5 to 12 of the Wisconsin Statutes. There are 4 regular elections to engage the voter's attention — the spring primary in February and the spring election in April of each year, and the September primary and November general election in the even-numbered years. Officers who are elected on a non-partisan basis are chosen in the spring. These comprise town, village, city and school district officers, county board members, county executives, all judicial officers and the state superintendent of public instruction. Officers elected on a partisan basis are chosen in the fall and include other county administrative officials, members of the legislature, state constitutional officers except the state superintendent, and members of Congress. Not all of these officers are elected at every election.

In presidential election years the presidential preference vote is held at the spring election, while the vote for president occurs at the general (November) election. At some elections, the Wisconsin voters are also asked by a referendum to advise the state legislature or local legislative bodies on matters of public policy or to ratify or reject a proposed law or ordinance or an amendment to the Wisconsin Constitution.

The Wisconsin Electorate

Size of the Electorate. Because Wisconsin does not maintain a statewide register of voters, the exact size of the electorate is uncertain. On April 1, 1980, Wisconsin population 18 years of age and older numbered 3,347,947, but not all of these were qualified to vote in Wisconsin elections. Since 2,273,221 votes were cast for president in that year, it can be assumed that about 68 percent of the eligible voters participated in the election. Since there were 2,212,018 votes cast for president in 1984 out of an estimated voting age population of 3,490,000, about 63% of those eligible to vote participated in the presidential election. In November 1986, 1,526,960 votes were cast for governor out of an estimated voting age population of 3,515,000, resulting in about 43% of those eligible to vote actually voting for governor.

Age Requirements. 18 is the minimum age for voting in Wisconsin. Article III of the Wisconsin Constitution provides that "every United States citizen age 18 or older" is a qualified elector if he or she fulfills certain other requirements. This is consistent with the 26th Amendment to the United States Constitution, ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the states (including Wisconsin), that extended the right to vote to citizens who are 18 years of age or older.

Residence Requirements. One of the voting requirements is residence. In Wisconsin state and local elections, the right to vote is granted to citizens of the United States who have resided in the state and election district or ward where they propose to vote for 10 days prior to the election. Under the statutes a person's residence is defined as "the place where his habitation is fixed, without any present intent to move, and to which, when absent, he intends to return". This definition generally determines a person's residence for voting purposes.

New residents who otherwise qualify as voters are permitted to vote for president and vice president, regardless of how short a time they have been Wisconsin residents. Beginning with the 1964 presidential election, ex-residents of Wisconsin who moved out of the state within 24 months preceding the election have been permitted to vote for president and vice president in Wisconsin unless they had meanwhile become eligible to vote in another state. In accordance with federal law, U.S. citizens living in a foreign country may vote in federal elections in Wisconsin if they last resided here before leaving the United States.

History of the Suffrage. When Wisconsin became a state in 1848, suffrage was restricted to white and emancipated Indian male residents including immigrants not yet naturalized. In a referendum held in November of 1849, suffrage was extended to colored male residents. In 1908, the Wisconsin Constitution was amended to restrict the right to vote to citizens of the United States. Women's suffrage came with the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution in 1920 (ratified by Wisconsin on June 10, 1919).

Voter Registration. Based on a constitutional amendment ratified in 1882, the Wisconsin Legislature "may provide for the registration of electors". Today, voter registration in Wisconsin is by law required for every town, village or city with a population of more than 5,000 and may by local ordinance be adopted for municipalities having a population of 5,000 or less. Voters may register by mail or in person at any of the following places: office of the municipal clerk, office of the county register of deeds, office of the city board of election commissioners in the city of Milwaukee, at the polling place on election day, at any other location designated by the municipal clerk or governing body or by the city board of election commissioners or common council in the city of Milwaukee (such as fire stations, libraries, etc.), or as part of a door-to-door voter registration drive. High school students and staff may, in addition, register at public high schools or, in some cases, private high schools designated by the municipal clerk. Municipal voter registration in Wisconsin does not record the party affiliation of the voter.

Selection of Candidates

Primaries. Election to public office requires 3 distinct steps: the selection of possible candidates, the nomination of candidates in a primary, and the election of officeholders in an election.

Until "Fighting Bob" La Follette became governor of our state, candidates for public office were selected at caucuses or conventions composed of delegates, of members of a political party, or of eligible voters. Contrary to popular belief, the Wisconsin nominating caucuses did not imply political deals hatched in smoke-filled rooms — the caucuses were subject to legal regulations equally as stringent as our modern election laws.

In most instances, candidates are chosen today in primary elections; the nominating caucus remains as an optional method for the selection of town and village office candidates. In most cases where nominations are made by means other than the nominating caucus method, aspirants to elective office circulate nomination papers to be signed by a specified number of voters in the constituency.

Primary elections are held in Wisconsin to determine the candidates for both the partisan general election held in November and for the nonpartisan spring election held in April. The spring primary is held on the third Tuesday in February; the fall primary, on the second Tuesday in September. Under a 1981 amendment to the state constitution, primaries are also held when necessary in conjunction with recall elections.

Nonpartisan February Primary. Nonpartisan primaries are required only under certain conditions. If 3 or more candidates run for state superintendent, county supervisor, any judicial office, or certain other offices, a primary election must be held. This is also applicable to municipalities adopting the system of nominating candidates by primary election. In nonpartisan primaries, the 2 persons receiving the highest number of votes for a specific office are selected as the candidates for that office in the nonpartisan election.

Partisan September Primary. U.S. Senators, congressmen, state legislators, state constitutional officers (except state superintendent) and most county administrative officials run in the September primary. The partisan primary, which requires voters to vote for candidates of only one party, is often confusing or frustrating to voters. Perhaps the most often asked question concerning the primary is — why can I not vote for candidates in more than one party? The answer to the question lies in the purpose of the partisan primary. The purpose is to nominate the candidates that a political party will run against nominees of the other parties in the general election. For example, it can be expected that Republican Party voters will vote to select (nominate) Republican nominees and Democratic Party voters will vote to select (nominate) Democratic nominees. In other words, the party primary does not elect the candidates directly into office, but merely provides an opportunity for the adherents of one political party to choose or (nominate) their party candidate to face the opposition in the November general election. The alternative to the party primary is the party caucus, which Wisconsin voters rejected more than 80 years ago.

Wisconsin adopted the open primary law for partisan offices in 1903 (Chapter 451, Laws of 1903), and the law was amended in 1905 to apply to the selection of national convention delegates.

Most states have a closed primary system, which requires the voter to declare his party allegiance before receiving the ballot of that party. Wisconsin's "open primary" law makes the choice a private matter; that is, the voter does not have to make a public declaration of his party affiliation to receive the ballot of that party. Instead, he is given the ballots of all parties, but votes his choices on one party's ballot only.

It is important to note that partisan primaries are held, regardless of the number of aspirants, to select the candidates of each recognized political party to run in each partisan general election.

In partisan primaries, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes becomes his party's nominee for the office, but a write-in candidate qualifies only if the vote for him also equals the greater of either at least 5 percent of the party vote for governor cast in the district at the last general election or the number of signatures required on nomination papers for the office.

The only other partisan officers chosen are party committeemen or committeewomen, who are elected at September primaries in even-numbered years. Each recognized political party elects one committeeman or committeewoman from each municipality, except that in municipalities over 7,500 population, committeemen and committeewomen are elected for each aldermanic district or polling place. Party committeemen and committeewomen may not be elected by write-in vote. When no candidate files nomination papers for party committeemen or committeewomen, the office does not appear on the ballot and the elected county committee may then appoint a committeeman or committeewoman to fill the vacant position. A party committeeman or committeewoman is required to be a resident of the district which he or she is chosen to represent. The elected and appointed committeemen and committeewomen constitute the municipal and county statutory committees of each party. These statutory committees are responsible for recruiting and nominating individuals to serve as election inspectors, filling vacancies in the nominations of party candidates, and appointing observers. Each committeeman or committeewoman who serves more than one ward may appoint a captain for each ward in the area in which he or she serves. The committeeman or committeewoman coordinates the activities of the ward captains. Activities of committeemen and committeewomen include voter identification, assistance in voter registration drives, polling and membership activities.

Presidential Preference Vote. On the first Tuesday in April of each presidential election year, the state holds a presidential preference primary for each party whose candidate for governor received at least 10% of the vote at the last election, upon request of the party. At the primary, Wisconsin voters are given an opportunity to express their preference for the person to be the presidential candidate of their party.

Prior to the primary, a bipartisan committee meets on the last Tuesday in January of that year and certifies to the State Elections Board the names of all nationally advocated or recognized candidates of parties participating in the primary, to be placed on the ballot. The committee may, in addition, place the names of other candidates on the ballot. The members of the committee consist of each party's state chairman or the chairman's designee, one national committeeman and committeewoman designated by each state chairman, the speaker and minority leader of the Assembly or their designees, the president and the minority leader of the Senate or their designees. The names of all designees must be submitted in writing to the Elections Board. An additional member, traditionally the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, is elected by the committee and serves as chairman.

Any potential presidential candidate may withdraw his name from the ballot by filing a disclaimer with the Elections Board, no later than 5 p.m. on the third Tuesday in February, affirming that he or she is not and does not intend to become a candidate for the office of president of the United States at the forthcoming presidential election. Other candidates may have their names placed on the ballot by filing nomination petitions with the Elections Board, signed by a specified percentage of qualified electors. The petition may be circulated no sooner than the last Tuesday in January. In addition, the ballot of each major party provides space for a write-in vote and space for the voter to indicate a preference for an uninstructed delegation from this state to the party's national convention.

As a result of the enactment of 1985 Wisconsin Act 304, which repealed the statutory provisions relating to delegate selection for the national conventions, the political parties now have complete freedom to select delegates on any basis they choose. What this means is that Wisconsin law still provides for an open presidential preference vote (primary) but the statutes no longer dictate how delegates are selected to the national party conventions in response to the presidential preference vote.

The impetus for the above change lies with the problems that the National Democratic Party had with Wisconsin's open presidential preference primary vote and its related delegate selection process. The National Democratic Party's position was that only declared Democratic Party voters should be able to vote for Democratic presidential candidates and select delegates to the Democratic National Convention. The U.S. Supreme Court, in February 1981, decided in favor of the National Democratic Party by holding that Wisconsin law cannot require a national party to seat delegates chosen in a way that violates the party's rules.

The 1983 Wisconsin Legislature considered proposals to establish a closed presidential preference primary but the measures were not enacted. As a result, the Wisconsin Democratic Party resorted to party caucus to select its delegates to the 1984 national convention. Subsequently, the Democratic National Committee, in March 1986, changed its mind and allowed Wisconsin Democrats to select their national convention delegates via an open primary rather than a party caucus system.

Elections

The Partisan General November Elections. From among the candidates chosen at the partisan primaries in September, the people of Wisconsin select, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of each even-numbered year, the elected officials of the state and its counties. In addition to the party candidates, however, there may be "independent" candidates who are either unaffiliated or affiliated with minor parties not qualified for ballot status. "Write-in" votes may be cast for persons whose names do not appear on the ballot.

The constitutional offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, and attorney general are filled from the state at large. The constitutional officers are elected for 4-year terms in the general elections 2 years after each U.S. presidential election. At every general election, a representative in Congress is elected from each of the congressional districts and a representative to the state Assembly from each of the Assembly districts. United States senators, who serve 6 years, are also chosen at the general election. The 33 state senators are elected for 4 years — one-half at each general election from the odd-numbered or even-numbered Senate districts. A clerk, treasurer, sheriff, clerk of circuit court, district attorney, and register of deeds are elected biennially from each of the 72 counties in the state, and all counties either elect a coroner or appoint a medical examiner. Door, Dunn, Eau Claire, La Crosse, Milwaukee, Oneida, Racine, Taylor and Waukesha Counties have a medical examiner system. Thirty-three counties appoint a surveyor, 22 counties elect one and 17 counties have no surveyor at all. Article VI, Section 4 of the Wisconsin Constitution, ratified in April 1965, abolished the offices of county coroner and surveyor in counties having a population of 500,000 or more, while a 1972 amendment allowed counties below 500,000 the option of retaining the office of coroner or instituting a medical examining system. In lieu of electing a county surveyor, Section 59.12 of the Wisconsin Statutes authorizes county boards to designate any registered land surveyor employed by the county to perform the duties of the county surveyor.

Vacancies in the offices of U.S. senator, representative in Congress, state senator, and representative to the Assembly may be filled by special election only. Vacancies in state constitutional offices and most county offices are filled by appointment except that the lieutenant governor constitutionally succeeds the governor in case of a vacancy in the office of governor (the secretary of state is third in line of succession). Appointments to fill vacancies on the state level and for most county offices are made by the governor.

Presidential Electors, Electoral College. In a presidential election year, each political party's candidates nominated in the primary for state and legislative offices, state officers and the holder-over state senators hold a convention in the State Capitol on the first Tuesday in October to nominate their party's slate of presidential electors for president and vice president. All other party and "independent" candidates file their slate of electors with their nomination papers. Although the names of the electors no longer appear on the presidential ballots, every vote cast for a candidate for president and vice president of each party is a vote for the electors of the nominees. The electors for the presidential candidate receiving the greatest number of votes in the November election become members of the electoral college and meet at 12 noon on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December in the State Capitol to cast the official Wisconsin vote for president and vice president. The number of electors chosen for each slate is equal to the state's delegation in Congress. One presidential elector is chosen from each congressional district and 2 are chosen at large. Wisconsin had 12 electoral votes in 1968; because of the reduction of its congressional districts after the 1970 census from 10 to 9, the number of its electoral college votes in 1972, 1976 and 1980 was 11. Under the 1980 census, Wisconsin retained its 11 electoral votes in 1984.

According to provisions of the U.S. Constitution and U.S. Code, the electoral votes are sent to the President of the U.S. Senate who, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, opens the sealed ballots and counts the vote for President of the United States on January 6 (or the next day if January 6 falls on a Sunday).

Nonpartisan April Elections. Nonpartisan elections are held on the first Tuesday of April for state superintendent of public instruction, judicial officers, county executive, county supervisor, town, village and city officers, and school board members. The terms of office vary, so only certain offices are voted on each year. The only nonpartisan offices voted for on a statewide basis are state superintendent and justices of the Supreme Court; all others are elected from the county, circuit, district, or municipality represented. In addition to the Supreme Court, consisting of 7 justices, there is a Court of Appeals, consisting of 13 judges elected at large from the 4 appellate districts. Three judges are elected from 3 of the districts and 4 judges are elected from the other district. The judges serve for staggered 6-year terms. Pursuant to 1978 legislation, the state adopted a "single level" trial court system, which now consists of 197 circuit judges (the former county judges were denominated as circuit judges). Each county is a circuit with the exception of the following 3 combined county districts: Buffalo-Pepin, Shawano-Menominee, and Forest-Florence. Individual county circuit courts are comprised of varying numbers of branches, with each branch headed by one judge.

The governor has power to fill vacancies which occur in nonpartisan state elective offices by temporary appointment. Many of the state's justices and judges first achieved judicial office through appointment by the governor; thus, gubernatorial appointments to a considerable extent determine the composition of the Wisconsin judiciary.

Constitutional Amendments; Referenda; Recall

Referenda. A referendum may be simply described as the process of referring a measure to the people via an election. In some states voters may, by petition, require a referendum to be held on a legislative act. Wisconsin does not have this type of referendum. On the state level, however, Wisconsin has other types of referenda: 1) measures involving amendments to the state constitution, 2) measures extending the right of suffrage, 3) legislation requiring ratification prior to becoming effective, and 4) advisory referenda.

An initiative, on the other hand, permits the voters to initiate, by petition, a proposal to be enacted into law, either by a direct vote of the people (direct initiative) or for submission to the legislature (indirect initiative). The voters of Wisconsin may utilize the initiative procedure only at the city level.

The most recent statewide advisory referendum submitted to the voters (1983) asked whether a nuclear waste site should be located in Wisconsin. The electorate overwhelmingly voted no.

County boards may submit advisory or ratifying referenda to county voters. Municipalities also have the right to submit referenda questions relating to village and city charter ordinances and certain other subjects affecting the government of the municipalities. In cities, electors may by petition require the common council to adopt an ordinance or resolution or submit it to a referendum.

In addition, all proposed amendments to the constitution must be ratified by the people before they can become effective. Thus, the voters of Wisconsin may be asked at an election to approve a change in the state constitution or express their preference on a matter of public policy. With 2 exceptions, all questions have been submitted by the legislature to the electorate at "spring elections" in April or "general elections" in November. One referendum, relating to a World War I soldiers' bonus, was submitted at the 1919 September primary and was approved by the voters; and another, relating to a mutual nuclear weapons moratorium, was submitted at the 1982 September primary and was also approved by the voters.

Constitutional Amendments. The procedure for amending the Wisconsin Constitution is adoption of an identical amendment by 2 consecutive legislatures and ratification of the amendment by a majority vote of the people at a subsequent election.

Since 1970 the Wisconsin electorate has voted on over 40 constitutional amendment proposals. The most recent amending took place in April 1987, when 2 constitutional amendments were ratified by the electorate. The amendments provided exceptions to the constitutional ban on gambling. One excepted a state-operated lottery; the other excepted pari-mutuel on-track betting.

Recall. The Wisconsin Constitution and statutes also provide for the recall of elective officers after the first year of a term through a process of petition and special election. No reason need be given for the recall of a state, congressional, legislative, state judicial or county officer. Unless the official resigns, he or she is listed on the recall ballot along with the other candidates who have been nominated according to statutory requirements. A recall primary is required whenever 2 or more persons compete for a nonpartisan office or whenever more than one person competes for the nomination of a political party for a partisan office. 1983 Wisconsin Act 491 made several changes in the recall provisions including the requirement that the petition seeking the recall of a city, village, town or school district official must now be for "cause" rather than for "good and sufficient reason". Under the old standard, a petition could be based on an issue of public policy; under the new standard, it is limited to an issue of inefficiency, neglect of duties, official misconduct or malfeasance in office. The act requires that the circulator of a recall petition preregister and file campaign finance reports for the circulation period in addition to the election campaign period as formerly required. It requires a statement of the source to appear on advertisements in recall campaigns and provides standards for determining the validity of recall petitions and signatures thereon. The act also changes the formula for determining the number of signatures required on recall petitions.

Prior to 1977, the recall was seldom used. In August 1977, 5 La Crosse school board members were recalled, and in September 1977 a county judge was recalled from office. This was the first time in Wisconsin history that a judge had been recalled from office. Two town of Washington (Eau Claire county) officials were recalled in 1982, and a town of Onalaska (La Crosse county) supervisor was recalled in 1985. In May 1982, a Grant county judge narrowly survived a special recall election.

The Mechanics of the Election Process

Certifying candidates, registering voters, and recording, tallying and reporting the votes of over 2 million people is a complex process. Who handles it? First of all, the process is guided by explicit state laws. Detailed specifications concerning the content of the ballot, for example, are set forth in the statutes. The Wisconsin Elections Board, which administers the election laws for the state, prepares all official ballot forms and other election forms, promulgates rules for the purpose of implementing the election laws and ensuring their proper administration, certifies to each county clerk the list of candidates for national and state offices, and performs other duties pertaining to elections.

For the potential voter, the election process begins when he registers to vote with the clerk of his municipality or — in Milwaukee — with the city Board of Election Commissioners. Registration is optional for municipalities having a population of 5,000 or less. The registration form requires information on name, date, residence location, citizenship, age, 10 days' residence in the applicant's ward, whether the applicant has lost his or her right to vote or is currently registered to vote at any other location, and signature. A voter's registration is permanent unless he moves; then he must reregister. However, in most cases, a municipality cancels the registration of a voter who does not vote during a 4-year period if the elector was eligible to vote during that period and failed to respond to a written request to apply for continuance of registration.

County clerks are responsible for preparing the ballots to be used for the election of all offices on the county level or above, and for distribution of them to the municipal clerks; municipal clerks supervise registration and elections in their municipalities; in cities or counties over 500,000 population, election duties are performed by a city board of election commissioners and a county board of election commissioners.

On election day there are usually 7 inspectors (that is, election officials) for each polling place. However, if voting machines are used, the number of inspectors may be reduced to 5. The law requires all cities, villages and towns having a population of 10,000 or more before July 1, 1995, or 7,500 or more thereafter to use mechanical voting machines or electronic voting systems. Each political party may also appoint 2 observers and alternates for each polling place. Certain candidates and nonpartisan and bipartisan groups may also appoint observers. A voter who cannot come to the polling place on election day, either because of absence from the municipality, sickness, handicap, age, disability, military service, jury duty or religious reasons, may vote by absentee ballot.

When the polls close, the inspectors canvass the votes and deliver one tally sheet statement and poll list each to the county clerk and to the municipal clerk. Where electronic voting systems are used, the count may be adjourned to a central location. The county clerk and 2 qualified electors of the county appointed by him (including one from another political party) constitute the county board of canvassers, which examines the returns. One statement of the results is filed in the county clerk's office; another statement, to which is attached a tabulation of votes cast at each polling place for each candidate, goes to the state Elections Board. The county clerk also issues certificates of election to the elected officials within the county.

The Board of State Canvassers, consisting of the chairperson of the state Elections Board, state treasurer, and attorney general, meets after each election to examine the certified statements of the county canvassers. The board makes a statement of the votes cast for each office and determines who has been elected. The Elections Board then issues certificates of election to all persons elected to a state office. The board also issues certificates or prepares certificates for issuance by the governor to persons elected to national offices from this state.

Campaign Financing

The regulation of campaign financing in Wisconsin was substantially revised by Chapter 334, Laws of 1973, with the intent of furnishing the voters with complete information as to who is supporting or opposing which candidate or cause and to what extent, either directly or indirectly. Substantive changes have been made in most sessions since then. Chapter 11 of the Wisconsin Statutes regulates campaign financing.

Duties of the State Elections Board. The state Elections Board furnishes candidates and committees with forms for making reports, furnishes manuals setting forth recommended methods of bookkeeping and reporting, compiles and maintains a current list of all reports and statements pertaining to each candidate, individual, committee or group, and prepares special reports. It may include in its biennial report any statistics compiled by it concerning the total contributions and expenditures of candidates and committees, amounts over $100 contributed by contributors, and additional data. It investigates violations of the election laws and must notify the district attorney, the attorney general or the governor of any facts within its knowledge or evidence in its possession that might be grounds for civil action or criminal prosecution. Similar requirements are made with regard to financial reporting in local elections.

The board also supervises the auditing of campaign finance reports submitted in connection with state elections.

Contributions and Disbursements. Every political party committee, other political committee or political group which makes or accepts contributions or makes disbursements in an amount exceeding $25 per year and every individual who accepts contributions or makes disbursements in an amount exceeding $25 per year files a registration statement with the appropriate filing officer (the Elections Board is the filing officer for all state and national offices and statewide referenda). A candidate must file a statement for any amount. The statement includes such items as the name and address of the registrant, the officers, the campaign depository, and the names of the candidates or the nature of the referendum supported or opposed.

Subsequently, such committees, groups or individuals must file full reports of all contributions received, obligations incurred and disbursements made, including the name, address and total contribution of each contributor donating over $20; an itemization of disbursements over $20 to other registrants; and a separate statement giving the name, address, occupation, place of employment and amount contributed by any contributor donating more than $100 in any calendar year or in the case of a conduit transferring contributions made by another, more than $50 in any calendar year. Nonresident committees, groups or individuals making contributions or disbursements in this state must also file their names and addresses and that of a designated agent in the state with the secretary of state. Registrants whose financial activity does not exceed $1,000 per year may be exempted from reporting.

Single Campaign Treasurer. Each candidate must appoint one campaign treasurer and designate one campaign depository before receiving any contributions or making any disbursements. Each candidate and his campaign treasurer must file a registration statement. Unless exempted from reporting, each candidate or the treasurer acting on his behalf must file periodic financial reports, for which the candidate is responsible as to correctness.

Contribution by Negotiable Instrument. All campaign contributions exceeding $50 must be made by check or other negotiable instrument, so that the origin is known. All campaign disbursements must be made or reimbursed by negotiable instrument drawn upon the campaign depository. Anonymous contributions from a single source exceeding $10 may not be expended but must be donated either to a charity or to the common school fund.

Limitations on Contributions. Limitations are imposed upon the amount that may be received by candidates. No one individual (except a candidate) may contribute more than the specified amounts to any of the following candidates and any individual or voluntary committee supporting him: constitutional administrative officers (governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, superintendent of public instruction), and Supreme Court justice — $10,000; state senator — $1,000; representative to the Assembly — $500; and all other state and local candidates — a limit which varies between $250 and $3,000 depending upon the office. Furthermore, no individual may make a contribution to all candidates in excess of a total of $10,000 in any calendar year.

No committee other than a political party or legislative campaign committee may make any contributions to a candidate for one of the constitutional administrative offices or justice of the Supreme Court of more than 4 percent of the candidate's disbursement level specified by law; nor may such a committee make contributions to candidates for other state and local offices in excess of monetary limits specified by law.

No political party may receive more than $75,000 of its contributions in any calendar year from all other committees except legislative campaign committees, nor more than $6,000 from any specific committee or its subunits. No committee other than a political party or legislative campaign committee may make any contribution or contributions to a political party exceeding $6,000 per calendar year.

No candidate may receive more than 65 percent of the total authorized disbursement level specified by rule of the State Elections Board from all other committees, including political party and legislative campaign committees. Of this amount, not more than 45% may be received from special interest committees or personal campaign committees of other candidates.

Identification of Contributions and Disbursements. Disbursements from the campaign depository may not be made anonymously, nor may contributions or disbursements be made in a fictitious name. The source of all political advertisements must appear thereon.

Independent Expenditures. All expenditures in support of a candidate (or in opposition to the candidate's opponent) must be made by or with the authorization of the candidate who is supported. However, an individual who or committee which swears that the individual or committee does not act in cooperation or consultation with a candidate or candidate's agent may make expenditures independently of a candidate. The individual or committee making the independent expenditure must register with the appropriate filing officer and file the required oath before making any independent expenditures. The independent expenditures may take the form of radio and television advertisements, mass mailings, or the use of phone banks.

Legislative Campaign Committees. Chapter 328, Laws of 1979, authorized the creation of legislative campaign committees for each party in either house of the legislature. These committees are not bound by limits on contributions by special interest committees to legislative candidates, but, rather, are treated as political party committees for contribution limit purposes.

As a result of the 4 legislative campaign committees, special interest political action committees (PACs) may make contributions to the appropriate legislative campaign committee in addition to or instead of making contributions directly to a candidate.

Political Action Committees. A political action committee (PAC) is any entity other than an individual that makes or accepts contributions or makes expenditures which are intended for political purposes and is not a political party, personal campaign or legislative campaign committee. The committee makes contributions to candidates or committees or makes disbursements on behalf of candidates or committees. PACs are often sponsored by trade or professional associations or labor organizations and draw their memberships from them. PACs also raise money to urge adoption or defeat of referenda.

In addition, political action committees often make contributions to multiple candidates and do not necessarily support one particular party over the other.

Although the small contributions from individuals still represent the major source of campaign contributions, most special-interest contributions are received from PACs. According to the 1983-1984 Biennial Report of the State Elections Board, for the period from January 1, 1983 to December 31, 1984, PACs made direct contributions of $873,415 to all state candidates. Of that $.9 million total, approximately $752,000 was given to legislative candidates, $61,000 to judicial candidates and the remainder to statewide candidates. There were no statewide elections during that report period.

Political action committees currently may not contribute more than $28,189 per campaign to a gubernatorial candidate, $1,000 per campaign to a state senatorial candidate and $500 per campaign to an Assembly candidate.

Public Campaign Financing. Under Chapter 107, Laws of 1977, a campaign fund was created in the state treasury consisting of general tax revenues from each individual filing a state income tax return who has a tax liability or is entitled to a tax refund and who specifies that $1 shall be set aside for this fund. The fund is available to candidates for statewide executive and judicial offices, as well as legislative offices, for use after the primary, provided that they obtain a specified number of votes in the primary and they raise a specified initial amount of private contributions from individuals in amounts of $100 or less. A participant must agree to accept spending limits and limits placed on personal contributions to his own campaign in order to receive moneys from the fund, unless his opponent qualifies for a grant but declines to accept it and declines to file a sworn statement affirming adherence to the limits. The fund is apportioned by office in accordance with a specified formula. Moneys accepted count towards the maximum limit of 45 percent of a candidate's spending limit which may be accepted from special interest committees (PACs), thereby substantially limiting this source of contributions for those who participate. Chapter 107 also made spending limits (which are binding only upon candidates who accept moneys from the fund and candidates who file a sworn statement agreeing to be bound by them) subject to an automatic cost of living adjustment. This, in turn, affects certain contribution limitations which are figured as percentages of the disbursement levels. Moneys from the fund may be used only for advertising in communications media, printing, graphic arts or advertising services, office supplies and postage; other campaign expenses must be financed with contributions from individuals, political parties, PAC's or other committees.

Prohibited Election Practices

Chapter 12 of the statutes lists prohibited election practices, such as practices involving bribery, fraud, election threats, and illegal actions of election officials.
